Greeks Hurl Back Italian Infantry, Tank Drives

Weary, Gallant Soldiers Inflict Heavy Losses, Declares Athens

Athens, Nov. 1.

FIGHTING with grim determination against infantry drives and tank lunges on the Epirus front, weary Greek soldiers hurled back the Italians with such force that they were able to inflict heavy losses and capture a number of Italian troops yesterday, the High Command announced in a communique issued early today.

The Greeks repulsed the Italians everywhere in the Epirus regions, the communique asserted.

Despite adverse weather conditions the tiny Greek air force bravely took to the skies and continued aerial operations against the better-equipped Italian aerial units. One Italian reconnaissance plane was turned back and was seen to have been struck by machine-gun bullets fired by a pursuing Greek craft, the communique reported.

During periods of fair weather on Wednesday Greek planes swooped down on concentrations of Italian troops and swept them with withering machine-gun fire. The Greek planes also dropped bombs on the Italian concentrations, the communique said.

The Greek pilots, in dare-to-die attacks, dived to a low altitude to spray the Italians with thousands of machine-gun bullets, according to information in the communique.

Aerial Battle

Italian and Greek planes clashed in mid-air combat Wednesday. The Greeks shot down one Italian plane, while another was believed to have been damaged so extensively as to have been forced down, the official communique said.

Greek naval forces also went into action yesterday, "successfully bombarding the enemy's right wing," the war report asserted.

The Greeks charged that the Italians were using irregular forces, indicating that they had pressed Albanians into service.

Low clouds and a driving rain dampened fighting along the front yesterday, forcing Italian aerial units to remain on the ground, but the adverse conditions did not prevent the Greeks from routing two Italian companies.

The Italians fled, abandoning their guns and equipment as Greek troops effected a successful counter-drive.

One Italian Army corps penetrated Greek territory, but met with strong resistance. Greek reinforcements rushed to the area and immediately repulsed the Italians, the Greek Radio announced.

There was limited aerial activity and two Greek fighters ambushed an Italian seaplane between Peloponese and Attica, shooting it down.

Janina Said Objective

The opinion that Janina is the chief objective of the Italians was expressed in military circles here yesterday. The authorities denied reports of a strong Italian push in the Florina sector, which was said to be "still comparatively quiet."

For the first time, Greek light bombers were reported in action yesterday, hammering the Italian columns and supply points behind the lines beyond Mertzani and bombing other columns advancing alog the coast road. Their principal object apparently was to hamper Italian forces driving towards Govmenitza on the Ionian Sea, the terminus of the road which leads up the Kalmas Valley of Janina.

Despatches from Salonika yesterday declared the Greek forces were "holding their lines at all points." The reports from the front had

Rome Says Advance Made on Janina

Pincer Movement Expected To Result in Fall of City Immediately

Rome, Nov. 1.

Italian forces last night were converging in a pincer movement upon Janina, first important town beyond the Greco-Albanian frontier, said dispatches arriving here.

One column composed of Alpini Bersaglieri and Albanian regiments, was circling towards the south-east in the direction of Janina from the frontier town of Perat, said dispatches from Argyrocastron (Argyrocastron, also known as Ghinokastro, is in the southern tip of Albania).

A second column was said to be heading directly for Janina from the vicinity of the Albanian town of Konispoli.

The Perat column was said to have pushed within 10 miles of Janina, and the Konispoli column was said to have reached a point within five miles of the town, last night.

Fall of Janina Expected

Both columns were expected to fight their way into Janina sometime today, said reports. Informed persons, however, denied reports circulating here that Janina had been taken last night.

A third column of Italian troops was said to be pushing forward toward Phorina in northern Greece, last night. Airplanes strafed Greek mountain artillery to assist the advance of troops.

Rome newspapers yesterday morning said the Italian advance was proceeding steadily, despite stubborn Greek resistance and heavy Greek artillry fire.

Rain Falls Steadily

Rain which fell steadily for 48 hours had transformed military zones into vast swamplands ringed by bleak mountains, said the "Messaggero."

Informed Italian sources declined to discuss a report of an Italo-Greek armistice. Italian occupation of Greece will continue whether or not Greece resists, these sources said.

Italians only will consider overtures from Greece which envisage capitulation of King George II of Greece, General John Metaxas, the Premier, and all his followers, informed sources said.—United Press.

Italian "Hopes"

London, Nov. 1.

Still another explanation of the slowness of the Italian advance in Greece was supplied by the Rome Radio last night.

"Firstly, Italy still hoped that the Greek Government would repent of its rash action while there was still time," the announcer said. "Secondly, fighting in the mountain zone must entail a slow, sure advance costing the smallest number of lives and the least damage, before this can be turned into a sweeping conquering attack."—Reuter.

Berlin Opinion

Basle, Nov. 1.

Wilhelmstrasse's view of the Italo-Greek conflict has changed, states the Berlin correspondent of the "Basler Nachrichten." It is suggested that the conflict will soon have consequences for Germany's relations with Hungary.

Official circles in Berlin compare Italy's action in Greece with Germany's action in Norway. The political solidarity of Berlin and Rome is emphasized, seeing that action against Greece is part of common warfare against Britain.—Reuter.

Italo-British Air Battle Reported

London, Nov. 1.

What may be the first Italian-British air battle in connection with the invasion of Greece was reported here yesterday.

An Italian plane was shot down in flames by British planes making reconnaissance flights over Greek and Italian waters Wednesday, the Air Ministry announced.

(A Greek radio report intercepted in Bucharest said that British planes shot down an Italian plane near Corfu).—United Press.

R.A.F. Bombs Naples in Record Raid

Germany Escapes Under Adverse Weather Screen

London, Nov. 1.

Staging their most ambitious raid of the war, British bombers last night attacked Naples, important southwest Italian port, the Air Ministry announced today.

Winging their way for a new record distance, the British bombers attacked oil tanks and other objectives in Naples.

"All our aircraft returned safely," the Air Ministry announced.

In bombing Naples the British bombers achieved a new record for attack, the Air Ministry stated

The attack on Naples made up for the lack of raids on western and central Germany. No raids were carried out over western and central Germany because of adverse weather conditions, the communique said.

During daylight yesterday, aircraft of the Coastal Command scored a direct hit on a merchant ship off the Norwegian coast, the communique asserted.

"One of these aircraft is missing," the communique concluded.—United Press.

Rome Admits Attack

Rome, Nov. 1.

Italian officials admitted today that British raiders last night bombed Naples and its suburb, "killing one person and wounding five others."

The British planes caused limited damage, according to the official communique, although they spread their attack over a wide area, including Bagnoli, Portacapuana, Pomigliano and Duarco.—United Press.

Cyprus Enthusiastic

Nocosis, Cyprus, Nov. 1.

The enthusiasm which patriots here have shown for the Allied cause since the beginning of the war, has developed feverishly since the entry of Greece into the fight against the Italians.

Everywhere houses and shops are beflagged and gifts of money are pouring into the Greek Consulate.

Dr. Loentios, well-known as the Bishop of Paphos and now the acting Archbishop, who was once charged with "spreading dissatisfaction among His Majesty's subjects", has expressed himself as a whole-hearted supporter of the Allied cause, and the Greek flag and the Union Jack fly side by side over his residence.—Reuter.

Tirana Said Bombed

New York, Nov. 1.

Reports that British bombers flying from Greek bases have heavily bombed Tirana, capital of Italian-occupied Albania, and several Albanian towns are contained in a message from Salonica to the "New York Times."

Later, the message adds, Greek bombers showered high explosion bombs on Tirana.—Reuter.

Naval Aid Said Given

Moscow, Nov. 1.

Great Britain gave naval aid to Greece and "prevented Italian forces from landing on Crete and Corfu," the Soviet army organ "Red Star" said yesterday.

"Britain is trying to strengthen her strategic position in the eastern Mediterranean and on the other hand Italy is preparing for new operations aimed at the occupation of Corfu," the "Red Star" also said.

The newspaper did not amplify its report or give any details of the reported British aid to Greece at Crete and Corfu.—United Press.

Invasion Bases Hit

London, Nov. 1.

Many tons of high-explosive bombs and hundreds of incendiaries were dropped on Wednesday night on the German-occupied ports of Flushing (Holland), Antwerp and Ostend (Belgium) and Emden (Germany), states the news service of the Air Ministry.

The attack on Flushing began early in the evening and lasted just over an hour. Several sticks of bombs were dropped on the Walcheren Canal and the inner and outer harbours and though clouds and haze made it difficult to see the full results of the bombing, one fire started between two docks was visible from 55 miles away.

At Antwerp, explosions and fires were reported in the harbour area.

Targets on Ostend Harbour, which previously had been attacked and since repaired, were struck at again by a strong force of Blenheim bombers. Easy identification of objectives enabled the bombers to score direct hits freely on quays and shipping berths. Every second bomb was followed by a heavy explosion and the crews could see debris being tossed high into the air.

At Emden, bursts were observed on a quay. One very bright fire was started and other fires were seen to spread rapidly. One aircraft attacked a nearby railway junction, where a large fire occurred.—Reuter.

U.S. Brokerage Loans Decline

New York, Nov. 1.

The Federal Reserve System announced today that brokerage loans last week totallel US$290,000,000, a decline of US$7,000,000 from the previous week.

Last week's figure also was US$177,000,000 lower than the corresponding week in 1939.—United Press.

Children's Hospital Bombed

Quietest Night of Week Experienced by London

Two Short Raids, Plenty A-A Fire, But Little Bombing Reported from Capital; Provinces Free

London, Nov. 1.

THIS city last night culminated the quietest week since the German air attack started with its quietest night—two short raids and plenty of anti-aircraft barrages, but little bombing.

The all-clear signal came at 9.30 p.m. and Londoners enjoyed the rest of the night in comparative quiet.

Enemy air raids also seemed to be slowing down over the rest of the British Isles, with only a little damage caused by German bombs nearby London and in a point in northeastern Scotland, according to an Air Ministry communique.

"There was further diminution of the enemy's air activity over this country last night," the communique said. "Few bombs were reported—mainly in East Anglia, London and the Midlands—and they caused little damage and few casualties.

"A few bombs also were dropped with little effect on one point on the northeast coast of Scotland," according to communique.

Few Bombs Dropped

Bad weather and London's new defences were credited with keeping Chancellor Hitler's Luftwaffe away.

Several German planes which braved a wild south-westerly gale and rain over the Straits of Dover, flew over London and dropped a few bombs, then droned away.

The planes were believed to be reconnaissance ships out to observe conditions. An intense anti-aircraft barrage greeted them.

"Molotovs" Dropped

"Molotovs" were scattered widely over one London district but quick fire fighting work extinguished them in 10 minutes, said reports.

Thick clouds hampered raiders elsewhere in England although some bombs were said to have fallen in open country in the north-eastern districts.—United Press.

Raid Damage Slight

London, Nov. 1.

Isolated enemy aircraft made a number of attacks on various parts of the country yesterday afternoon, states an Air Ministry communique.

Russia Said Not Aiding Turkey

Ankara Believes Soviet "Not Interested"

Ankara, Nov. 1.

Reports that the Soviet Union promised to assist Turkey in the event of a German attack on the Dardanelles are ridiculed here.

The Turkish view apparently is that if the Soviet Union had felt strong enough to challenge Germany, she would have prevented the Nazis establishing themselves on the Black Sea coast.

According to reports reaching Ankara from Moscow, Soviet officials are already hinting that the Straits are of no great interest to Russia anyway.—Reuter.

Nazis Attack on Norwegian Probed

Trade Envoy to U.S. Said Kidnapped When About to Make Important Address

New York, Nov. 1.

Investigation was under way today of charges that Nazi sympathizers Monday night kidnapped and robbed Mr. Ingvald Haugen, 46 year-old Norwegian trade emissary to the United States, and held him prisoner for 29 hours.

It was charged that Mr. Haugen, who also is president of the Norwegian Seamen's Association, was kidnapped on the eve of a scheduled address at Brooklyn, where he was expected to reveal the identity of "fifth column" elements among Norwegian seamen in the United States.—United Press.

Canada Soon to Ship Complete Planes

Engines as Well as Frames To Be Constructed

Ottawa, Nov. 1.

Canada will be able to ship complete aeroplanes to Great Britain within a few months. Hitherto Canadian companies only built aircraft frames, the engines being installed in British plants. Now the engines will be built in the Dominion so that Canadian defence forces will not be so dependent on supplies from Britain and the United States.

Negotiations are now under way with a British firm to obtain patents and plans of British engines and for skilled craftsmen to be sent to Canada to supervise construction of a plant.

While normally it would require two years before the first units could be produced on a mass basis, it is estimated that with the help of skilled British craftsmen Canadian production will begin within a few months. About 11,000 persons are now employed in the Canadian aircraft industry—an increase roughly of 40 per cent, during the past three months.—Reuter.

Haile Selassie Seeks Battle with Italians

Ethiopian Leader Hopes To Lead Own People

London, Nov. 1.

A British Broadcasting Company commentator, reporting from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan on an interview with Haile Selassie, former Emperor of Ethiopia, said today that "Haile Selassie announced his intention to lead the Abyssinian people against the Italian:....and to help Britain in its larger fight to liberate all nations from enslavement and tyranny."

The commentator said that Haile Selassie "hopes soon to head his own people in the fight, claiming that their struggle against the Italians burst into flames again when Italy began its Egyptian campaign. He said he hoped Abyssinian feeling against Italy would intensify when he arrived."

The B. B. C. was unaware when and where the interview was given.—United Press.

Swift, Strong Action Against Italy Urged by Admiral Lord Chatfield

Possibilities of Night Action on Adriatic Communications Stressed in Broadcast

London, Nov. 1.

ADMIRAL of the Fleet Lord Chatfield, former Minister for Coordination of Defence, thinks Great Britain should strike violent blows against Italy now.

Britain, he declares, has naval forces in the Mediterranean able to contain the Italian fleet, to hold the Straits of Gibraltar and to protect the Suez Canal.

Italy, in invading Greece through Albania, can maintain her armies by a short sea route across the Adriatic, which is not an easy sea for the British Navy, but there are always possibilities of night action, and if Italy plans to extend her operations to Greek islands the British Fleet may be given the opportunity it has waited for, Lord Chatfield continues.

"The laws of strategy dictate to strike at the enemy's weak spot with the utmost force. Italy is the weak spot of the Axis and those sea and air forces that can be spared from the defence of Britain against Germany should enable us to strike violent blows against Italy now," he declared.

Guarantees to Greece

Lord Chatfield expressed this view in a broadcast last night, in the British Broadcasting Corporation's series of "War Commentaries."

Listeners heard with special interest his answer to his own question which came towards the end of his address: "What will be the effect of our fleet's responsibilities in implementing our guarantee to Greece?"

Lord Chatfield said: Obviously they will be considerable. The Greek navy consists of a cruiser, 23 torpedo craft and 6 submarines. They are well trained and will play their part by the side of our own.

"Italy's object may be to divide our military forces and so weaken our resistance in Egypt. But sea and air-power will be of more value to help Greece than a large army sent to Salonica with all that it means in transport and supply.

"No New Battle-Ground"

"The waters of Greece are no new battle-ground for us. Thanks to Greek hospitality our navy has for years exercised there. Her harbours and islands have valuable strategic points well known to our sailors, which we shall doubtless use. But one must remember that bases cannot be improvized so simply or so rapidly as before, for they have to be defended against air and submarine attacks. It is too early in Italy's new adventure, however, to discuss such matters."

Minister for coordination of Defence during many arduous month of the present war before Mr. Chamberlain's resignation, it is significant that the Admiral began with the assertion that "the laws of sea-power have not so far been vitally modified by aerial or even by submarine warfare," though it was true that the loss of Channel ports had enabled the enemy to mount coastal batteries at the Narrows so that the passage of convoys from there, a routine traffic problem, "becomes a naval operation." But he added immediately: "Nevertheless our trade continues to flow along this route which the enemy has done his utmost to deny us."—Reuter.

Armistice Day Not to Be Observed In Britain This Year—Official

Poppy Sales to Be Made as Usual, But Services Will Be Held on Sunday, November 10

London, Nov. 1.

The King has decided that the usual Armistice Day service at the Cenotaph will not be held this year, and the Archbishop of Canterbury has made an announcement to this effect, it was stated yesterday.

The British Government feels that in present circumstances it would be preferable that other large services which it has been the custom to hold throughout the country should not be held, but there will be a general desire that the Armistice anniversary should not pass without the associations which have so long surrounded it, it was declared.

Although November 11 will be observed as Poppy Day as hitherto and members of the British Legion are making the usual arrangements for the sale of poppies in aid of Earl Haig's fund, it will not be possible to signal a two-minute silence as in previous years, in view of the risk of confusion with air-raid warning signals.

The announcement by the Archbishop of Canterbury states: "It has been proposed, with the approval of His Majesty the King, that Sunday, November 10, should be observed in our various places of worship and in our hearts and homes as a day of remembrance and dedication.

"Remembrance—we shall still remember those who fought and died for their country's cause in the last war and with them now those who have already in the present war given their lives.

"Dedication—we shall dedicate ourselves to the task of finishing, if it may be, the work which the men of 1914-1918 sought to do and giving our utmost to win a victory of freedom, justice and peace. We shall dedicate our minds and wills even now to the task which will await us when this war is over—the task of bringing in a new and better ordering of our common life, both national and international, on a basis of Christian faith and on loyalty to the Kingdom of God.

"Truly, by the call of this great time, the most fateful in our history to each one of us a bond is given; he should henceforth be, else sinning greatly, a dedicated spirit."—British Official Wireless.

Laval Hints At Terms Reached With Reich

"Difficulties" So Long as Hostilities Last Seen by French Vice-Premier; Questions To "Be Answered" Within Next Few Days

Paris, Oct. 31.

THAT a practical form of cooperation between France and Germany, specially regarding colonial and economic matters, formed the subject of the talks held with the German authorities here by M. Pierre Laval, the French Vice-Premier, was disclosed by the latter in an interview he granted to the press today at the Hotel Matignon, former residence of French Premiers.

"There still remains much ground to be covered before France and Germany reach an agreement on all problems of common interest," he added. "Indeed, it is not a matter of days nor even of weeks before the ravages of war are repaired and the ruins rebuilt. One must understand that everything will remain difficult as long as military operations continue. Nevertheless, both parties raised precise questions which will be answered in the course of the next few days."

At the outset, M. Laval recalled the broadcast delivered two nights ago by Marshal Philippe Petain, the Chief of the French State, "in which the latter stressed the importance of his meeting with Herr Hitler."

Referring to France's collaboration with Germany, M. Laval said the Marshal proclaimed that it "must be a sincere one and be devoid of any thoughts of aggression."

"Natural Outcome"

M. Laval then announced that he had conferred today with German civil and military authorities in Paris.

"These talks were but the natural outcome of the now historic conference between Herr Hitler and Marshal Petain at Montoire," he said. "In the interests of both France and Europe we inaugurated a policy which will enable us to bring about the recovery of our country."

Colonies Discussed

"In all fields, and specially the economic and colonial spheres, we already envisaged and will continue to examine in what practical form our collaboration can serve the interests of France, Germany, and Europe," he continued. "These contacts were established in an atmosphere of courtesy quite unusual following a defeat, and in a mutual spirit of understanding.

"There still remains much ground to be covered before France and Germany reach an agreement on all problems of common interest. Indeed, it is not a matter of days nor even of weeks before the ravages of war are repaired and the ruins rebuilt. One must understand that everything will remain difficult as long as military operations continue. Nevertheless, both parties raised precise questions which will be answered in the course of the next few days. All these questions directly affect the life of our nation."

"France Will Judge Us"

"Fully conscious of the seriousness of this problem, the Marshal and the Government have bent their hearts on its settlement," M. Laval went on. "France will soon be in a position to appraise the nature and extent of the efforts we have exerted. She will judge us on the results achieved."

The Vice-Premier then stressed that he would retain "a lasting souvenir of the interviews at Montoire-sur-Loire at which I was present."

"In future France will know how to protect herself against foreign influences and assume, in freedom, full responsibility for her action," he concluded. "It is most painful to be compelled to restore, following a defeat, what we should have been able to preserve, but we have enough victories inscribed on our flags to be able to offer our youth an ideal of peace."—Havas.

German Pressure Reported Made on Turks to Force Greeks to Capitulate

Sofia, Nov. 1.

Substantial German troop movements in Rumania in recent hours and the arrival of additional German forces at Giurgiu and other points on the Danube were confirmed by reliable quarters here early today.

German aircraft units also were reported to have arrived at Constanza.

The sudden spurt in German activity in Rumania was linked with the reported German pressure on Turkey to force Greece to capitulate to the Italians.

If the Germans do not come we will go to them, in which field no man can yet say but somewhere east, west or north there is a flank to turn or a front to be pierced, and since the armies of the Empire are of the same stuff as our seamen and airmen, when the opportunity arises it will be the same triumph of mind over the mass, the vindication of free men over slaves."—British Official Wireless.

All U.S. Officials Deny Knowledge Of Bomb Sight Sale to Britain

Colonel Stimson Refuses to Confirm or Refute Report U.S. Military Secret Has Been Sold

Washington, Nov. 1.

Leading War Department officials and members of the British Purchasing Commission last night denied all knowledge of the alleged deal under which the United States had agreed to release the army's secret bomb sight to the British.

Colonel Henry L. Stimson, War Secretary, however declined to confirm or deny the reports that the War Department had approved the export of the army's secret bomb sight which allows bombers to hit targets accurately from an altitude of 20,000 feet.

"I have no records in front of me," Col. Stimson said when asked whether the War Department had decided to transfer the bomb sight to Britain.

The Under-Secretary of War, Mr. Robert Patterson, said, "I know nothing about it."

Officials of the Treasury Department, members of the Defense Commission and spokesmen of the British Purchasing Commission likewise said they were without knowledge regarding the report.

Earlier this week, however, War Department officials, Army chiefs and members of the British Purchasing Commission held an important conference at which it was believed that the British again asked that the U.S. Army release the bomb sight and also some "flying fortress" bombers.—United Press.

Mr. Willkie Again Urges More Aid to Britain

"We Must Help Them with More Materials Than They Need," Declares Republican Nominee

Camden, New Jersey, Nov. 1.

"THE people of Britain are fighting for their lives against an aggressor and we must help them with more materials that they need," declared Mr. Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, in a campaign speech here today in which he criticized Mr. Joseph C. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Britain, said that the American people wanted an Ambassador who would be at his post at the critical hour, and that they did not want a mere third term candidate. He said that never had Americans been faced with so much to do so quickly.

There had been a terrible reaction against the Democratic way of life sweeping across the peoples of the earth. While granting that President Roosevelt had the best intentions when he said that he wished to preserve Democracy, yet, the drift in America could not be mistaken. He declared: "The problems of our industrial society have been forcing the United States, further and further, in the direction of Government domination."—Reuter.

Roosevelt Attacked

Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, last night charged that President Roosevelt "thinks of himself in terms of a ruler of people."

He accused the President of "playing cheap politics with international affairs and the liberties of people."

Mr. Willkie, in the final lap of his presidential campaign, yesterday and last night made speeches at Wilmington, Del., and Camden, N.J., before appearing here.

"While Rome Burns"

The Republican candidate summoned the people of the United States to overthrow "New Dealers while there is still an opportunity."

He said that the United States has only one Ambassador on duty to the great nations of Europe—in Moscow.

Raising his voice, he shouted, "Here they (the ambassadors) are running around this country and making political speeches while Rome burns."—United Press.

Hoover's Charges

Lincoln, Nov. 1.

Mr. Herbert Hoover, former President, in a radio speech, last night said that the United States at present was not in any danger of invasion but was far more likely to be drawn into war under President Roosevelt than under Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate.

President Roosevelt's policy for the last three years, the Republican leader said, has been that of "sticking pins into tigers all over the world . . . History alone will tell how much of our playing of power politics may have created unjustified hopes or influenced action in Europe."—United Press.

To Outdo Roosevelt

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 1.

Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, yesterday said he could gear up U.S. production of planes and other munitions and aid Britain better than President Roosevelt.

Mr. Willkie made his assertions before a crowd of 10,000 persons gathered to hear his election campaign address.

Referring to President Roosevelt's speech at Boston Thursday night, Mr. Willkie declared that if he were elected president he could surpass any Roosevelt efforts at speeding up the national defence programme.

"If I am elected president," Mr. Willkie said, "our production of planes will be so geared up that a request for 12,000 planes for Britain wouldn't even be news because it would be so insignificant."—United Press.

Evacuation from Asia Ridiculed

"Extravagant Charter of Four Great Liners" Hit By General Johnson

New York, Nov. 1.

Gen. Hugh Johnson, noted columnist of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, in his column yesterday ridiculed the State Department's advice that Americans in the Orient evacuate. His column yesterday was written in the form of an open letter to the American Ambassador to Great Britain, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, whom General Johnson addressed as: "Dear Joe, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, or vice versa."

"Secretary Hull," General Johnson declared in the column, "was prepared to start a big electioneering emotional explosion last Saturday, by knocking in Japan's teeth in a speech. So we extravagantly chartered four great liners to evacuate all Americans from Asia, including 14,000 from Japan. That show was a flop.

"Mr. Hull learned in time that such crass electioneering use of his office would destroy public confidence in his great integrity.

"When the first ship arrived, many Americans gave the trumped-up danger 'the bird,' and declined to be evacuated.

"Seven thousand of the 14,000 Americans in Japan were Japanese, who just happened to be born under the flag in Hawaii.

"Mr. Hull was de-horned, and diluted his fiery speech with kindness."

The ss. Monterey, first of the evacuation ships to reach the Far East, was reported to have sailed from Yokohama yesterday with only 58 American passengers who had boarded at the Japanese port.

General Johnson's column appears daily not only in the 25 Scripps-Howard newspapers but also in scores of other dailies who receive it through the United Features Syndicate.—United Press.

Special Plane for Kent's Body

Hongkong, Nov. 1.

The China National Aviation Corporation has despatched a special plane to Kunming to bring back the body of Mr. W. C. "Foxey" Kent, American pilot who was killed on October 29 when Japanese raiders machine gunned the C.N.A.C. Douglas transport plane he was flying, it was announced today.

Mr. Kent's body will be cremated in Hongkong, it was learnt. In Hongkong awaiting the arrival of the body are Mrs. Kent and their three-year-old son, Peter, and Mr. Kent's father-in-law, T. B. "Buster" Brown of Manila, former Shanghai business man.—United Press.

People of N.E.I. Purchase 9 Spitfires

Batavia, Nov. 1.

Within the last few weeks the population of the Netherlands East Indies have supplied sufficient money for nine Spitfires. Yesterday, £5,000 for the ninth, named "Billiton", bought from money collected among the employees of the Billiton Tin Company, was transferred to London.—Reuter.

U.S. Navy Orders Planes and Motors

Washington, Nov. 1.

The Navy ordered U.S.$106,000,000 worth of planes from the Glenn Martin Company, and awarded U.S. $41,000,000 in contracts to the Pratt Whitney Company for aeroplane motors.—United Press.

U.S. Wholesale Prices Advance

Washington, Nov. 1.

The Department of Labour's all-commodity index of wholesale prices during the week ending October 25 advanced .2 per cent. to 78.6 per cent. of the 1926 average.

The figure compared to 78.4 per cent. for the week ending October 18 and 77.7 per cent. for the corresponding week of 1939.—United Press.

250-300 Planes a Month From U.S. to Britain

Two Serious Bottlenecks In Production

Washington, Nov. 1.

The United States is at present sending Great Britain between 250 and 300 'planes a month, it is estimated, and with every effort being made to speed up production this figure should be steadily increased.

President Roosevelt's allusion in his speech at Boston Friday night to Great Britain's request for additional 'planes refers to a scheme discussed by the British Purchasing officials and the Treasury some weeks ago when they inquired if it would be possible for the United States to produce 3,000 'planes a month for Britain.

Investigations showed that this is hardly feasible and would require the establishment of nearly 40 new factories. Estimates were given for the production of about 1,300 'planes a month, and a new British order for 12,000 machines, including both fighters and bombers, followed.

Nobody can say when the output of 1,300 aircraft a month can be reached because there are two serious bottlenecks in the American aircraft industry, namely in the production of machine tools and aero-engines, but informed American sources express the view that resort may again be made to the system of releasing Britain 'planes ordered for the American Air Force.—Reuter.

Kennedy to Become Head Of Defence Commission?

New York, Nov. 1.

Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who has been recalled to America, may become the head of the Defence Commission, "the Barnie Baruch of the new world war," if President Roosevelt is re-elected it is suggested by two noted columnists in the "New York World-Telegram."—Reuter.

12 Oil Tankers Acquired By U.S. Fleet

Washington, Nov. 1.

As part of the vigorous effort to increase the U.S. fleet effectiveness, the Navy has acquired 12 new oil tankers capable of an 18-knot maximum speed, it was disclosed here yesterday.—Domei.

U.S. to Produce 12,000 More Bombers

Washington, Nov. 1.

The United States War Department is reported to have planned production of 12,000 additional bombers largely with the help of the motor car industry. This programme is estimated to cost $2,000,000,000 and will meet the request of Britain for 12,000 planes. It is believed the War Department proposes to erect two large factories to assemble parts manufactured in motor car factories. Whether these will be operated by the Government or by aircraft or motor car companies has not yet been decided.

The new plan will be the fourth in the warplane building programme. The others are: 1. 35,000 machines for the United States Navy and Army already mostly contracted; 2. The original British programme for 14,000 aircraft; and 3. The new British order for 12,000 planes.—Reuter.

*London Experiences Quiet Night

Bombs were dropped on two towns in the eastern counties and points in South Wales and the Midlands, according to early reports. Casualties were small and damage slight.

The nightly "alert" was sounded somewhat earlier than on the last few nights and Londoners settled down to the usual nocturnal concert of bomb and barrage. So much has this habit grown in the metropolis that a vague uneasiness seemed to be felt when the "raiders passed."

A barrage had been heard and the noise of a few German machines apparently flying very high. A small number of bombs were dropped in scattered districts, but the early attack had died down and the night was still. All regular transport services of tubes, omnibuses and trams were resumed in the normal manner.

Leicester Square Damaged

Internationally known institutions in Leicester Square, famous centre of London's gayest moments and synonymous for home to all Britons everywhere, suffered in a recent air raid. A heavy bomb fell in the north-west corner.

Thurston's Hall—home of billiards and scene of many championship matches—was totally wrecked. The Leicester Square cinema, where many premieres attracted fashionable crowds, actors, actresses and socialites, was damaged.

The well known skyline of the south and south-east also was altered by damage to buildings in varying degree, but the only casualty was a night watchman who suffered from shock. Antiquities in Thurston's Hall were destroyed except for a few valuable pieces which may be repaired.

At the centre court of Wimbledon the stand was wrecked by a direct hit and debris thrown on the court but this was quickly repaired.—Reuter.

Italians in Raid

London, Nov. 1.

After the quietest night since the start of the airblitz, German air activity over Britain suddenly increased this morning and by 3 p.m. today there had been three air raid alarms.

Six heavy bombers among the three waves of invading craft crossing the southeast coast this morning were believed to have been Italian.—United Press.

Greeks in Egypt Flock to Colours

Consulates Said Unable To Cope with Rush

Cairo, Nov. 1.

United by the invasion of their country the Greeks in Egypt have made a clear sweep of their political differences. Irrespective of party feelings, all of them are backing the Athens Government. Telegrams to this effect have been sent to General Metaxas, Premier and Commander-in-Chief of Greek Forces.

Although no instructions on mobilization have yet been received from Athens, hundreds of Greek Consulates, particularly at Alexandria, are hardly able to cope with the rush of volunteers.

Greek resistance continues to evoke much satisfaction in the Egyptian press. It had an encouraging effect on Egyptian public opinion and has given the lie to the propaganda agents who persistently claimed that neither Greece nor Turkey would resist aggression at the side of the Allies.—Reuter.

U.S. Loan to Mexico Said Discussed

Mexico City, Nov. 1.

Negotiations for a twenty-five million dollar loan to Mexico by the United States were reported to be under way in utmost secrecy here yesterday.

Well-informed circles said that an announcement was expected following the installation of President General Manuel Camacho on December 1.—Domei.

Seamen Survive Terrible Ordeal

Nassau, Bahama, Nov. 1.

Two British seamen, survivors of a sunken British cargo boat, arrived here after a terrible journey of 55 days.

They had come 2,500 miles in an open boat and four of their companions had died. They had nothing to drink for eight days and both were burned black. One had lost 80 pounds in weight as they, finally, had eaten seaweed and flying fish.—Reuter.

created, these despatches said, a general feeling of optimism at Salonika, although few details regarding the fighting were available.

Nightly Black-out

All northern Greece is blacked out every night, but otherwise life there is reported to be proceeding normally.

Rumours that Soviet Russian military planes had arrived at Salonika were denied by the Greek authorities here and also by a Tass dispatch from Moscow. A report circulated by a British news agency yesterday asserted that 120 or 150 Russian military planes had arrived in Greece from the Soviet Union during the past few days.

Telephonic communications between Athens and Berlin were disrupted yesterday for an unexplained reason.

Although German-Greek relations obviously are in a delicate state, a German Legation spokesman described them as "satisfactory, but fluid."

"Germany has no quarrel with Greece," the German spokesman said.

Incidents Avoided

The Greek Government and police are doing their utmost to avoid incidents which might lead to friction between Greece and Germany.

A Foreign Office spokesman told the United Press yesterday that reports overseas of peace talks between Greece and Italy were absurd, since all Greek frontier lines were holding and Britain already was giving all possible aid. The statement was interpreted as indicating Greece would continue the war, despite reports emanating from various other Balkan capitals to the effect that peace was imminent unless British and Turkish aid was forthcoming.

The police of Athens yesterday issued an order that foreigners would not be permitted on the streets between 9 p.m. and daybreak without special passes.

The streets were cleared in record time when an air alarm was sounded late yesterday afternoon, and but few citizens were sufficiently curious to crane their necks in search of enemy planes, as they did on the first day of the war.

During the alarm, a lone Italian reconnaissance plane flew over the city and Tatoi aerodrome but it dropped no bombs and quickly disappeared in the murky sky.—United Press.

Prisoners Taken

Ohrid, Yugoslavia, Nov. 1.

Italians heading toward Salonika were halted by fierce Greek fire and 49 of their number were taken prisoner by the Greeks, it was learned today at this neutral vantage point.

The Italians launched an advance from the Albanian frontier village of Vidohm, almost due south-east of Korca, crossing the Greek-Albanian frontier early this morning. They drove ahead about three kilometres, occupying the Greek village of Karelista.

Meanwhile, Italians in the north-central section yesterday afternoon advanced two and one-half kilometres toward Florina along the main road to Salonika. These were the troops which met withering Greek gunfire and were forced to halt.

On other fronts in north-western Greece, the Greek forces appeared to be holding their own.

Italian troops, supported by light artillery, advanced seven kilometres along the road joining Belvino, Albania, with Janina, Greece, it was said.

Greek troops resisted stubbornly. Thirteen Italians were killed and 60 were wounded, while the Greeks lost 20 killed and 40 wounded, said reports here.

At other points the Italians were said to have taken some towns but were thrown back in furious fighting in other localities.

Italian forces at dawn occupied the small Greek village of Kastanani, several kilometres south of Konispoli, at dawn, it was said.

Italians Repulsed

Greek troops repulsed Italian columns which attacked the town of Melisopetra, on the main road to Janina, said reports.

Bad weather hampered fighting along the entire battle line Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Heavy cannonading along the Yugoslavian border, in the direction of the Albanian village of Bilista, near Prespa, was audible here.

Italian troops from the Albanian town of Mesarie crossed the frontier, following the main road to Janina and attacked a bridge over the Vyosa river but were halted by Greek artillery fire after an hour of fighting.

Seventeen Italian were killed and 40 were wounded and four Greeks were seriously wounded, said reports reaching here.

The main concentration of Italian troops on the Greek frontier was said to be in the vicinity of Mesarie.—United Press.

Contact Not Made

Athens, Nov. 1.

The greatest depth of the Italian advance at any point is only six miles, according to authoritative sources here today. They said Italian artillery was pounding the Greek advanced posts but nowhere had contact been made with the main Greek defence lines.

The Italians are using a large number of mobile field guns in which they are greatly superior to the Greeks, it was reported. The mountainous nature of the country on the Greek-Albanian frontier dictates only three practical lines of advance for the Italian forces. In the north-east a gap in the hiyh ridges which affords an approach to Florina on he road to Salonika is exceptionally well guarded by the Greeks. The Italians had concentrated heavily at Korca, in Albania, for a drive against Florina, but hitherto they have failed to make any significant progress.

Another gap found in the centre of the front leads only into difficult country where few if any strategic advantages are to be won by attacking in force. Near the coast is a third gap between the mountains and the sea.

Patras Again Bombed

The Greek port of Patras, where more than 100 people were killed on Monday, has again been heavily attacked from the air.

A communique issued by the Ministry of Public Safety states that in two raids yesterday damage was caused by eight planes to a number of houses, but only one person was injured.

It is reported that 110 bodies were recovered after Monday's bombing, including those of a priest, a police official, 30 women and 45 children.

More than 200 bombs are said to have been dropped on Patras, destroying a large number of buildings, none of which could be described as a military objective.

Aid Offered

Offers of aid from wealthy Greeks are pouring into Government offices. One shipowner has written the Premier, General John Metaxas, placing three vessels at the disposal of the nation. A Greek family living in London has cabled £5,000 as a contribution to the air force. Many public and private bodies in Greece have remitted large sums for the same purpose.

Stories of brilliant feats by Greek soldiers are beginning to reach Athens. An entire division of Alpine troops is reported to have been held up for many hours in mountains by only three Greek companies. Elsewhere, a Greek platoon, making clever use of ground, routed two Italian companies.—Reuter.

Greek Ship Said Captured

London, Nov. 1.

The Greek steamer Attica (1,405 tons) has been captured by the Italians, states the German radio.

The vessel was en route from America to Greece with a mixed cargo of oil, copper, tyres and glycerine.

Reconnaissane flights over Greek and Italian coastal waters were made by the Royal Air Force on Wednesday, and during one flight an Italian aeroplane was encountered and shot down in flames.

A communique announcing this records attacks by the Royal Air Force and South African Air Force in the Middle East on six Italian bases and camps in Libya and East Africa. A stores dump was destroyed, military buildings were damaged or set on fire and warehouses heavily bombed at Bardia and Tobruk (Libya), Teclezan and Kern (Eritrea), Lugh Ferandi (Italian Somaliland) and Massawa.

The aircraft returned safely from all operations, concludes the communique.—Reuter.

Advance Said Slow

Washington, Nov. 1.

Greek resistance is effectively slowing the Italian advance, according to reports from Greece to diplomatic quarters here yesterday.

The Italian advance is extremely slow and had not exceeded 15 kilometres in any direction up to early afternoon yesterday, said the reports.

British troops had not been landed in large numbers in Greece up to the time of the reports, the same diplomatic sources said.

Abundant supplies of British munitions, however, have reached Greece, the same sources said.

There was no confirmation here of reports originating abroad that Russian planes had arrived in Greece.—United Press.

Italian Prisoners Arrive

Budapest, Nov. 1.

The first 50 Italian prisoners of war have arrived in Salonika, according to a Greek radio report intercepted here yesterday.—United Press.

Italian Troops Trapped

Bucharest, Nov. 1.

Two companies of Italian soldiers were trapped in a Greek ambush on the Florina front on Wednesday, said a Greek radio report received here yesterday.

Many Italians were killed by fire from Greek machine guns, and the remainder fled, the report said.

Greek warships on Wednesday bombarded the foremost Italian positions on the Albanian mainland opposite the city of Corfu, the radio report also said.—United Press.

Hitler May Reveal French Terms Soon

Zurich, Nov. 1.

Diplomatic circles have come to believe that decisions of capital importance concerning France were taken at the Florence meeting between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini, states the Italian-controlled Tele-press Agency.

These decisions, the agency adds, are likely to be the subject of a speech which Herr Hitler will shortly make at a special session of the Reichstag.—Reuter.

Mr. Chamberlain Not En Route to U.S.

Washington, Nov. 1.

Reports that Mr. Neville Chamberlain, former British Prime Minister, was en route to California "are definitely untrue and certainly premature," a British Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman declined to amplify his statement.—United Press.

F.M.C. Use Japanese Military Script

The French Municipal Council administration yesterday decided to use Japanese military script to pay for the purchases of Japanese goods which heretofore have been payable in Chinese dollars.

The first payment of Y.15,000 was made yesterday against the delivery of Japanese cement.

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

The spokesman of the Foreign office revealed that he had received information that a new talk concerning loans was proceeding between Mr. T. V. Soong, President of the Bank of China, and United States authorities. The spokesman added that no official confirmation, however, was forthcoming.—Reuter.

Mariposa Sails for Far East

Evacuee Ship Carries No Cargo or Passengers

Honolulu, Nov. 1.

The Matson liner, Mariposa, sailed for the Orient today without any passengers or cargo.

The big liner departed after loading 200 cots, bedding, extra life jackets, medical supplies and foodstuffs which arrived aboard the Lurline.

The Mariposa also carried an extra physician, nurse, barbar four stewards and extra help in the commissary department.

The Matson liner dropped off 232 passengers from the Antipodes mainland today aboard the Lurline.

The Mariposa is scheduled to sail from Shanghai November 10 for Chinwangtao to pick up American evacuees from North China cities. The Mariposa then will proceed to Kobe, Honolulu and San Francisco.—United Press.

Bank Assistant Robbed Of $20,000

Hongkong Road sear Museum Road in the downtown district was the scene of a daring armed hold-up yesterday morning when a messenger of a native bank of 253 Szechuen Road was relieved of $20,000 in notes by three men, two armed with pistols.

The messenger, a youth of 1 was going along the road in a rickshaw after calling at a bank in Hongkew with the money wrapped up in a newspaper.

The gangsters who appeared to have been informed that he had gone to Hongkew to transfer money to the Settlement were lurking on Hongkong Road waiting for him. The robbery was a grab-and-dash affair and the robbers escaped before the police arrived on the scene.

Australian Envoy to Japan Leaving Soon

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

The newly-appointed Australian Minister to Japan, Sir John Grieg Latham, is shortly leaving Australia for his post, possibly on November 10, the spokesman of the Foreign Office announced at the press conference today.—Reuter.

*First Lord Broadcasts Tomorrow

A recorded talk by Mr. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, is being broadcast by the B.B.C. New Commander in Africa Praised

Gen. Cunningham Said to Possess Great Tenacity And Resourcefulness

London, Nov. 1.

General Wavell received valuable reinforcement this week in the person of Major-General A. G. Cunningham, who has arrived in Kenya to take over command of troops in East Africa. He is a brother of Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, who commands the Mediterranean Fleet and shares his qualities of tenacity and resourcefulness.

Recently Major-General Cunningham has been closely associated with anti-aircraft defences in Britain and has been a big influence in their practical development. He has an engaging personality and will be popular with the South African troops in Kenya.

He is also a "live wire." Another military figure who has come to the forefront of late is Major-General J. F. C. Fuller, known to his friends as "Boney" when on the active list because of his remarkable resemblance to Napoleon Bonaparte. He is also a man of ideas whose writings commanded a wide public.

He considered that the Army's basic need was tanks and yet more tanks a policy which 18 years ago was unpopular and led to such acid controversy that Major-General Fuller was branded by conventional military men as an extremist. Nevertheless in 1923 a permanent tank corps was created largely as a result of his efforts and this grew in experience until it was embodied in the Royal Armoured Corps which now consists of mechanised cavalry and tanks.

Major-General Fuller was not able to serve with the creation of his brain. He retired many years before it was realised to devote himself to writing and the study of military history. Now once again his keen ideas are creating widespread interest.—Reuters.

Chairman Inspects Police On Parade in Drill Hall

Informal Ceremony Ends in Presentation of Police Distinguished Conduct, Long Service Medals

ONCE a splendid show and eagerly-awaited by thousands of Shanghai residents, the annual S.M.P. parade was an informal affair yesterday when only a part of the complete force, including the Specials, participated. There were only a few spectators, these including Colonel J. W. Hornby of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, Commandant L. Fabre and Lieutenant P. Blanchet of the French Municipal Police, members of the Watch Committee of the Shanghai Municipal Council, and two or three families of S.M.P. members.

The ceremony started a few minutes after 2 p.m. when Major K. M. Bourne, Commissioner of Police, appeared in the Drill Hall to inspect the parade prior to the coming of Mr. W. J. Keswick, Chairman of the S.M.C.

The S.M.C. Chairman appeared at 2.15 p.m. sharp and the whole force came to attention while he, in company with Major Bourne, Deputy Commissioner C. Akagi, Deputy Commissioner T. M. Yao and Deputy Commissioner H. D. M. Robertson, inspected the various branches of the Police force, these being the Foreign Branch Section I, Foreign Branch Section II, S.M.P. Specials, Sikhs and Chinese. The above units were under the respective commands of Assistant Commissioners A. H. Samson, I. Kakegawa and W. J. Gande of the Special Police. Assistant Commissioner P. C. Liang commanded the Chinese Branch.

Others to assist at the ceremony included Captain H. M. Smyth, Deputy Commissioner H. D. M. Robertson, Deputy Commissioner C. Akagi, Assistant Commisioners W. J. MacDermott, V. Sharman, H. R. Grubb.

The police parade marked the last appearance of several police officers who are shortly leaving the force.

Officers Decorated

The names of those receiving medals, together with little histories of the cases which won the recepients their medals, were read out by Superintendent C. J. Bull, Quartermaster of the S.M.P.

The first to be called out were the two Chinese policemen of the F.M.P. who were cited for excellent assistance rendered to the Municipal Police on April 13, 1940, the day, it may be recalled, Superintendent S. L. Tan of the S.M.P. was shot by assassins in Weihaiwei Road. Others to be honoured for participating in the shooting affray following the assassination of the Chinese police officer were Sergeant P. B. Duffy, S.P.C. 671 and C.P.C. 1014.

The presentation to the above was followed with one to the daughter of C.P.C. 2556, who died following the encounter with the late Mr. Tan' assassins. The scene of the presentation was pathetic as Mr. Bull read the citation which said that the late C.P.C. 2556 was being decorated for outstanding courage and bravery displayed in an encounter in Weihaiwei Road on April 13, 1940 with armed assassins during which he received wounds which later proved fatal.

There were two awards of Police Distinguished Medals, Class I, the first being received by C.P.C. 1895 for the part taken in a shooting and bombing outrage near the "Shanghai Times" Building on July 22, 1935 which resulted in death of Captain "Tug" Wilson, who was fatally wounded in the cross-fire between "Chung Mei Jih Pao" for printing it was presumed, a denunciation of Mr. Wang Ching-wei.

The second Class I medal was awarded to C.P.C. 157 for courage, personal initiative and devotion to duty displayed during a large scale shooting affray between Police and armed robbers in Peking Road on February 1, 1940. The C.D.C., as well as Detective Inspector R. Moir and Sergeant C. E. A. Cooke who also received medals for taking part in the affray, was wounded in the shooting. Others to receive medals for participating in the encounter with these robbers were Detective Sergeant D. G. Jones, Probationary Sergeant G. I. Schale, C.D.C. 208 and C.P.C. 2041.

Bar to Medal

Sub-Inspector H. Bretherton received a class II medal for outstanding initiative and courage in connection with a shooting affray with an armed criminal in Weihaiwei Road, near Avenue Foch, on December 8, 1939. He was also awarded a bar to his medal for bravery shown in an encounter with gunmen on September 1, 1940.

In addition to the above, Police Distinguished Conduct Medals were awarded to Detective Sub-Inspector J. W. Sanbrook, Probationary Sergeant R. J. Bulpin, Detective Inspector T. Hill, Detective Sergeant A. E. Taylor, Sergeant R. J. W. Crouch, Probationary Sergeant E. J. Quigley, Sub-Inspector I. James, Sergeant A. E. Cornwell, Detective Sergeant R. Eynstone, Detective Inspector J. A. McCahey, Sergeant W. A. Nicholl, Probationary Sergeant N. C. Webb, Sergeant S. Okura, Sergeant M. Kasukawa. Probationary Sergeant S. Arai, S.P.C. 459, C.P.C.'s 2919, 1580 and 570; C.P.S. 394, 1606; C.P.C.'s 2926, 2359 and 2950. C.P.S. 1608 C.P.C.'s 3125, 3208 and 2373; C.D.C.'s 213 and 101; C.P.C.'s 3300, 3051, 2236, 1443, 1667, 920 and 3332; C.P.S. 565; and Sub-Inspector Li Shu-fa.

Long Service Medals were awarded as follows to Police regulars:—

Foreigners

Deputy Commissioner H. D. M. Robertson, Assistant Commissioner V. Sharman, Superintendent J. Barry, Chief-Inspectors O. B. Perkins and E. J. Ling, Inspectors J. Watson, R. W. Ward and W. H. Police Thanked

After the ceremony, Mr. Keswick delivered a short speech in which he thanked the Police for the work they have been carrying for the Shanghai community and congratulated the force for their splendid show on parade. The S.M.C. Chairman also took the opportunity to congratulate the recipients of the medals, concluding that his congratulations and thanks were shared by everybody in the city.

Another pleasant gathering took place at the Police Club, attended by a large number of Police and their friends.

Mr. R. P. Butrick Leaves Shanghai

Many Americans Sailed In President Pierce Yesterday

The former acting U.S. Consul-General in Shanghai, Mr. Richard P. Butrick, was among the Americans leaving Shanghai yesterday in the ss. President Pierce. Altogether there were 98 passengers embarking on the liner yesterday at various times and crowds gathered at the Customs Jetty to see friends and relatives depart. Many prominent members of the American community were at the Jetty to see Mr. Butrick and his family leave.

Flowers and chocolates were presented to Mrs. Butrick by friends on the jetty, while Mr. Butrick stood chatting with associates of many years who had come to bid him farewell. As he came down the jetty the crowd of about 200 cheered and pressed round to have a last few words with the popular official. He is going to America, after six years with the Consulate-General in Shanghai, and will take a short holiday before proceeding to Washington to take up a new post.

Crowds of Americans were present when each tender left during the course of the day, many of whom are preparing to leave themselves in the next week or two, on one of the evacuation liners which will be calling here. Among those present at the wharf to see Mr. Butrick off were Mr Frank P. Lockhart, Judge Milton J. Helmick and Mrs. Helmick, Mr. D. C. Berger, Mr. M. B. Hall, Colonel De Witt Peck, Mr. M. Bruce Smith and Mr. J. B. Sawyer.

Among the 98 passengers embarking on the President Pierce yesterday was a small number of evacuees, who have been "packed" into the ship. Most of those embarking yesterday, however, had booked their passages on the ship long before the evacuation scheme was announced. No special arrangements were made on the liner to increase accommodation, as has been done on the evacuation liners Monterey, Mariposa and Washington.

Monterey Arrives Today

The ss. Monterey, which will arrive in Shanghai today from Yokohama, will enter port at about 2.15 p.m., a tender from the vessel arriving at the Custom Jetty at 3 o'clock. The liner has on board 58 Americans, who joined the ship at Yokohama. The Monterey will sail from Shanghai tomorrow night, the last tender for outgoing passengers leaving the Customs Jetty at 11 p.m. About 325 American evacuees will go on board the liner here, although all the available accommodation will not be filled. The Monterey will make for Australia when she leaves Shanghai, sailing from there to America.

Bookings for the ss. Mariposa, the other Matson Line evacuation steamer, are coming in to the American President Lines office steadily, and it is likely that she will take more Americans from Shanghai than the Monterey. This liner is due to arrive here on November 10, sailing for Chinwangtao on the day after arrival. A change in schedule for the ss. Washington was announced yesterday. She will not call at Los Angeles on her trip to the U.S.A., going straight to San Francisco instead, arriving there on December 6.

Sunday School League Continuing Work

Recent Celebration of Twentieth Anniversary

The Sunday School Promotion League, which celebrated its twentieth anniversary last May, is continuing to carry on its work of Bible teaching in China. The League workers are almost all laymen in daily business life, who have given up much of their time to assist in teaching pupils of the society. Regular teaching is now being undertaken, not only of pupils, but also of Sunday School teachers.

The League has now under its management thirty Sunday Schools conducted in churches, schools, Y.M.C.A.'s and refugee camps, with a staff of one hundred and fifty voluntary workers and a total pupil enrollment of three thousand.

The annual budget has from the inception of the work been raised entirely by subscription. In the early days its supporters were mostly native Christians. In recent years an increasing number of foreign friends, here as well as elsewhere, have shared in its support at this time of unique opportunities for Christian work in this land.

The budget for the twenty-first year calls for $6,000, and the financial campaign to raise the needed amount is now in progress. Those who are interested in the mission of the League are requested to send their contributions to the honorary treasurer, Lane 546, No. 65, Tiendong Road, Shanghai. Cheques, drafts and money orders should be made payable to the order of the "Sunday School Promotion League."

At the S.M.P. Annual Parade

The Shanghai Municipal Police gave a splendid account of themselves at their Annual Parade yesterday. The top photo shows Mr. W. J. Keswick reviewing police officers in charge of the various stations in the International Settlement. He was accompanied by Major K. M. Bourne, Deputy Commissioners H.D.M. Robertson, C. Akagi and T. M. Yao (the last two not seen in the picture). There was a pathetic scene when Mr. Keswick pinned a Police Distinguished Conduct Medal (lower photo) on the little daughter of the late C.P.C. 2556, who died following a shooting affray on April 13, 1940. The medal was awarded posthumously.

MacKellar Case Continues

Further Evidence of Accounts Given by Witness

Mr. J. M. Lum, travel accountant clerk of the American Express Company, was the only witness called before Mr. C. H. Haines in H. M. Police Court yesterday at the adjourned preliminary examination of P. J. MacKellar, former travel department manager of the company, alleged to have embezzled funds belonging to them. The hearing was adjourned to Tuesday.

Witness said he joined the firm in 1928, and told the court that when a booking is made a steamship exchange order is issued and it would be handed to MacKellar to be checked and initialled. Witness would then take the voucher to Mr. E. Spokoiny, the accountant of the company, for approval. The voucher would then be passed on to the accounting department for book entry in the journal register and for recording in a travel ledger card.

Continuing witness said that when a traveller makes a payment, he would issue a sales slip from information received from the booking clerk concerned. When a booking was handled by MacKellar the information he would furnish sometimes would be verbal. On other occasions he would give witness the debit note from which to get his information, if the payment received was in local dollars. If a cheque received was drawn on New York or other currency, witness would register a collection number and write it on the cheque and the sales slip. The latter would be handed over to MacKellar for checking and for his initial before being passed on to the accountant and be treated in the same way as the journal voucher. If cash is paid, witness would make out the sales slip and hand the money over to the teller with it for him to initial the slip.

Heroin Smokers Appear In Court

Five Russians and a Rumanian gypsy were among ten heroin smokers appearing in the First Special District Court yesterday. One of the Russians, a girl, was unable to attend court, as she had been deprived of the drug since the arrest of the gang at a house on Yuen Fong Road two days ago. The gypsy was said to have spent $30 a day buying heroin to satisfy her craving for the drug. Three of the Russian men pleaded guilty, stating that they took heroin because their constitutions were undermined, and without it they unable to stand up. The other Russian man said that he was not a heroin smoker, and was only a tenant of the house where the gang were arrested. The case was adjourned for a week.

Man Tries to Drown Himself Off Bund

Alert Boatman Uses Long Hook to Pull Him in

To commit suicide on a fine autumn morning with the sunshine streaming down warmly from a blue sky was what a skinny old Chinese tried hard to do yesterday. Evidently things had become so bad for him that the weather didn't matter much: whatever the cause, this emaciated man in tattered white clothes surprised a number of people lolling along the Bund in the mid-morning sun by suddenly throwing himself awkardly into the water off the Customs Jetty. A startled boatman lunged out with his long boat hook and catching it in the clothes of the man in the water pulled him in to the jetty where he was hauled up on the boards with water dripping off and out of him. Soon a jangling ambulance arrived, took on a very wet passenger, and drove away.

Christmas Appeal By War Fund

Money for Comforts for Forces Asked; Air Raid Relief Continued

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Central British War Fund was held on Wednseday at 5 p.m. The present were:—Messrs. L. H. Lamb, A. H. Atkins, Dr. E. G. Gauntlett, Mr. R. J. E Price, Sir Robert Calder Marshall, Messrs. H. G. W. Woodhead, G. H. Stacey and F. S. Crawford.

The object of the meeting was primarily to consider the issue of a special Christmas appeal. It was decided that while the Fund should not neglect its clear duty to continue to remit to England for Air Raid Relief, the opportunity should be given to the Shanghai community to express the natural desire to give a Christmas present to the fighting forces of the Empire. It was also the unanimous wish of the meeting that the Allied Forces in the United Kingdom should share this present. To this end it was agreed that a special Christmas appeal for the provision of Christmas comforts for the Royal Navy, British Army, the Royal Air Force and Allied Forces in the United Kingdom should be sent out to all on the Fund's list of subscribers. It is hoped that the recipients of this appeal will assist in giving it the widest possible publicity.

After the receipt of the monthly subscriptions in the early days of November it was calculated that available funds for disbursement would total £1,250. This sum is to be sent on November 10 to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relief of air raid victims. Including this remittance the total amount devoted to date to air raid relief will be £6,315.

Telephone Cable Stolen In Hungjao Area

During the early hours of yesterday morning a further theft of telephone cable took place in the Hungjao district, this being the thirty-seventh theft of a like nature since the restoration of service after the cessation of hostilities in that area.

Between MacLeod and Rubicon Roads a 350 foot length of telephone cable containing one hundred and one pairs of wires was stolen by unknown persons and in consequence, thirty-five telephone subscribers west of that point are now without service. An official of Shanghai Telephone Company states that replacement of the cable is proceeding at utmost speed and it is hoped to have service completely restored by this evening.

Korean Confesses To Murder

Arrested on Return to Scene of Crime; Handed Over to Japanese

The murder of a morphine salesman, committed in a lane off Rue Bourgeat at about 3.30 p.m. on Thursday, was completely solved the same evening when the French Police apprehended a Korean, Nurada Satao, aged 26, when he returned to the scene of the crime to collect his belongings. The murderer, who arrived there in company with five other Koreans, confessed to the brutal murder and was turned over to the Japanese authorities.

It was learned yesterday that the murdered man, said to be Li Kinggneu, came to the Korean's house on Thursday and demanded some money. A quarrel then ensued, culminating in two Chinese receiving injuries. King succumbed to his wounds, while the other Chinese disappeared. The money demanded from the Korean, it appears, was a sort of "hush-money" asked by the Chinese to keep Nurada's secret of trafficking in dope.

As soon as the murder was reported to the French Police, they detailed a constable there to keep on the lookout for the wanted man and when the latter returned in the evening, he was arrested and brought to the Poste Central where he confessed to the crime. In his confession Nurada stated that the murdered man came to his room, where he sold morphine, several times, always demanding and obtaining money. On Thursday, in company with two other loafers, the deceased again appeared for money. When the Korean refused to give him anything, the other pulled out a knife and threatened him. The other two also took up a menacing attitude.

Seeing himself outnumbered, the Korean grabbed an axe and attacked the Chinese, inflicting a fatal wound on one, and causing injuries to the other Chinese.

The murderer, after his confession, was handed over to the Japanese authorities.

Accuracy

Wear a Tissot watch and compare its accuracy with the most reliable timepiece in the city. It is almost synchronized. The absolute reliability of Tissot watches under the most severe conditions is a miracle of modern mechanism and is due largely to its non-magnetic qualities.

The non-magnetic properties of the Tissot watch make it indispensable to all engineers, electricians, doctors and all those who have to work near magnetic fields which are likely to ruin the adjustment of watches or even stop them altogether. There is such a multitude of magnetic fields nowadays, that a Tissot watch is almost an absolute necessity.

Surprise Defeat Puts "Y" Team Out of Race for Championship

Lowly C.C.C. Reds Drop Leaders by the Odd Game; Mrs. Dalton Scores Brilliant High Single of 135

THE lowly Columbia Country Club Reds sprang a surprise yesterday in the Ladies' Duck Pins League "A" Division when they dropped the present leaders, the "Y" Women's Sports Section, on the latter's alleys by the odd game, thus putting them out of the race for premier honours as they have completed their schedule, and stand with a percentage of only .555. Mrs. Dalton took high honours of the day by bagging the high single and triple with scores of 135 and 336.

The "Ys" took the opening game when Mrs. Zee and Mrs. Collaco crashed the pins for tallies of 113 and 102 respectively, despite Mrs. Evans's brilliant effort of 135. However, the homesters faded out of the picture in the next two games as their opponents by steady bowling took to the lead to the finish.

By defeating the American Club trio in the other "A" Division match the C.C.C. Blues sneaked ahead of the former in the league race, cutting on their own alleys, they pulled off the winners by fair margins and indications pointed to a repeat which was stayed off by the bowling performances of Mrs. Evans and Mrs. McClellan.

According to the league standings the Columbians and American Club Aces may secure the championship, but in order to do so their victories must be secured over the Columbians—otherwise a tie will follow as the teams are now well bunched. The Reds by securing victories in their next two games will top the list with a total of 11 wins. The Aces now centres on next week's games.

"B" Division

The Race Club took their fourth straight win yesterday when they edged out the American Club Deuces on the latter's alleys and paved their way for a cinch on the top berth position in the "B" Division. Not a single century single was returned by the Race Club but their steady average kept them well to the front.

Thanks to a brilliant performance on the part of Mrs. Sobel the "Y" Boots kept within striking distance of the potential champions by defeating the Columbian Whites on the odd game.

Week-End Soccer Commentary

Four Interesting Matches on the Programme

By F. C. Hall

As week follows week it becomes increasingly difficult for one to be able to forecast results of games in the First Division. Here we are in the fourth round of local Soccer and the matches slated for this week-end are, if anything, more uncertain than those previously, and after the mistakes that I made last week-end I feel a little doubtful about attempting anything of a like nature again—still, everybody is entitled to his own opinion.

The league is still wide open for anybody to take the lead and with everybody as determined as the next to grasp it, it would fetch long odds to those who feel that they are able to forecast with any certainty the results of this week's games, let alone the league championship. The eight battles that the S.F.A. served out over their last meeting must be as discouraging to spectators as to the players and officials alike. This policy, if persisted in, will, I think, eventually lead to better and cleaner sport to the enjoyment of all concerned.

S.F.X. vs. Lusitano

Again all grounds are open to play this week-end, with four matches in the senior division down for decision. Of the four, my opinion is that the game between S.F.X. and Lusitano to be played tomorrow at the Race Course will be the most evenly contested. Lusitano showed us last week that they are at last beginning to get into their stride, while the S. F. X. proved that they were not quite so hot as we thought. But in spite of this the "Saints" will, in my estimation, prove themselves the better side. Both teams play a fast brand of football and the game should be interesting to watch.

Police vs. S.R.C.

Today on the same ground the Police clash with the "Recs," and I foresee that a large crowd will be there to witness it. Neither team has lost a match this season and each is as determined as the other not to begin now. There has always been a certain amount of friendly rivalry between these two teams, and, if a conversation that I heard between the two skippers last week is any criterion, that rivalry is still there; which is all to the good, as it always leads to a clean, well-fought match and I do not think that those who turn out to see this one will be disappointed. After my failure last week with the Police I am almost afraid to predict anything regarding them now, but with the shake up in the "Recs" line-up it would not be surprising to see the "Lawmen" come out the winners.

A.S.F. vs. J.R.C.

At the Canidrome this afternoon we see two teams matched who have not yet won a game this season although they have both given good accounts of themselves in spite of losing. We saw the "Legion" last week display, at times, some of the movements that brought them their past glory and if they could only strengthen their forward line a little, they would be a team of some moment in the league. Last week, in spite of playing without the services of either Collet or Bell, the A.S.F. managed to give the "Recs" quite a run for their money. If these two players are available this week, it is on the cards that the J.R.C. will remain as they are—still without a point.

P.T.H. vs. Tung-Wha

The last game is that between P.T.H. and Tung-Hwa, and there is no doubt that on paper the Chinese should walk away with it, but there is nothing certain about football, and while it is possible that the "Scholars" may surprise us, I should have to be in possession of a lot of inside information before saying that they will win.

While the foregoing are my own hunches, I think that anybody who feels like backing them should always remember the uncertainties of football everywhere and Shanghai in particular.

Shanghai Golf Club Miura Cup

Members of the Shanghai Golf Club are reminded of the "points against bogey" competition which is to take place today and tomorrow at Seekingjao for the Miura Cup and it is hoped that all members will make an effort to turn out as the trophy is a valuable one and, further, competitions of this nature are always very popular.

On Sunday, November 10, it is proposed to hold a Ladies' Open Golf Meeting, details of which will be announced in these columns next week.

Ten Flat Races to Be Run At S.R.C. Today

Man O'Strength, Rain, Gracie Picked as Probable Winners; 11th Extra Meeting

By "The Chaser"

THE programme for this afternoon's racing—the Eleventh Extra Race Meeting of the Shanghai Race Club—will comprise ten flat races with the lower classes not included. Racing will be among the first four classes of the China ponies and the Australian ponies and others not exceeding the height limit of 15 hands.

The Londonderry Stakes, the longer of the two open races, over the distance of a mile and a quarter, will naturally be of major importance. Particular interest is centred in this race as all the ponies entered are of championship calibre and would be quite worthy of the autumn classic.

An interesting fact among this lot of ponies is that although they are undisputedly of the first class, none has won a race this autumn. Such ponies as Cordon Rouge, Rain, White Parade, Merrylight, Honeymoon Gift and Vim have all been running close in their past outings and because they will all be making a desperate effort to qualify we should see an excellent race with a close finish.

We may see the initial autumn appearance of such well known ponies as Magic Circle and Smokylight. The former it will be recalled won the Spring Champions in 1937 when running under the colours of "Morn" as Sparkling Morn. He has been nursing a back ailment for some time and although he went well in training there is some uncertainty regarding his standing strenous work such as a race. If he is back in his old form there is nothing that can touch him. The winner here may be Rain who should be well extended by his stable mate Cordon Rouge. The remaining place may fall to the vastly improved Democratic Prince. Vim has been in the picture in every start and may cause an upset.

In the earlier open race, the Belfast Stakes, we may see the very fit Honeymoon Gift taking the measure of such well known three-quarter miles as Don Enrico and Busted Straight. Slow Motion was placed last week with a penalty of six pounds and I do not think nine pounds will lessen his chances very much. Frostylight is not his former self while Columbus' form is unknown. If a good rider should take out Grumpy in the first race I think he will win although the presence of White Lord will be disconcerting. There is much talk of Bellington, a very fast pony over a short distance, and if he will only keep going he should place. Other ponies that will attract backing are Goldenlight and Going Slow.

I do not think we saw the best of Haiphong last Saturday and if he should be in the second race today we may see him to much better advantage so much so that I think he will win from Smart Guy and Fiery Admiral. If Colorado Kid should start in the third race I do not think it is necessary to look any further for the winner. Strong competition should come from any one of the Fiery starters while Off Chance should be good enough for a place.

If Fiery Admiral should prefer to start in the fourth race, an each-way bet on him should prove profitable. Wintrylight is very fit and is the most dangerous rival to the winner. The Swan may fill the remaining place. There is an entry of 17 second class ponies in the fifth race and I think Fleeting Bow should just about be able to make the grade. He has been running well since the beginning of the season and should lead White Willie and Ashridge past the winning post.

The "A" class of the Rockhampton will attract unusual interest as it will mark the Autumn debut of Man O'Strength the undisputed champion among the Australian ponies. He will carry 162 pounds and despite his weight I do not think he will be beaten. Gold Star may attract equal support while Bluegrass should not be out of the first three. Tanda is spoken of in some circles but I cannot see him running among this lot.

My selection for the "B" section of the handicap is Gracie and I expect to see her lead Corporal and Senorita past the winning post. Merry Maid is well fancied by many but she was stuck at the start in her last outing. The last appears to be the most even of the lot of the Australian pony races and of this bunch I like Captain Tim the most. Esmeralda is very fit and with the speedy Speedwell should fill the minor positions.

Annual Meeting of Chess Club

The Annual Meeting of the International Chess Club was held at the Foreign Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday, in the presence of about twenty five members. After a brief summary of the Club's activities during the past year by Prof. J. Ely, Mr. H. W. Snow presented the Secretary's and Treasurer's report, both showing satisfactory results for the season.

In view of the forthcoming departure of Prof. Ely and his inability to accept the presidency which he has filled for the past four years, the meeting elected the Messrs. Diamant (President), Snow (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer), Schaap, Bristow, Mysberg and Kosovsky to serve on the Committee for the 1940/41 season.

Mr. M. Diamant on behalf of the new Committee briefly outlined the programme of activities for the coming season. Aided by the exceptional generosity of some members, the Club has been enabled financially to organize the Shanghai Chess Championship commencing November 27th, in which, besides the eleven strongest players, the Viennese master, E. Glass, will also compete. Another tournament limited to members of the Club only will commence about November 15.

At the end of the meeting Prof. Ely distributed the prizes to winners of the 1939/40 Championship and Qualified Tournaments. The winners were: Championship—1. Kosovsky 2. Stasinevitch, 3. Harnik; Major "A"—1. Spitzer, 2. Schulzer; Major "B"—1. Rudnansky, 2. Koptilin; Minor—1. Tonnochy. 2. Kohlhauser.

Attempt Made to Cripple Melbourne Cup Favourite

Melbourne, Oct. 31.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to cripple Beau Vite, the favourite for the Melbourne Cup, Australia's premier turf event.

The attackers bored small holes in the horse-box but mistook the champion's stable-mate for the champion and shot it in the hind thigh and hock with an air-gun.—Reuter.

"Y" Giants Defeat Paramount Bees

The Y.M.C.A. Giants basketball team yesterday defeated the Paramount "B" squad by 47-23 in a friendly encounter played at the Foreign "Y" gymnasium.

The game was a return meeting with the Giants in the role of avengers for the defeat of 24-20 they suffered at the hands of the Chinese in a recent tussle at the Chinese "Y".

Vernick, the tall centre of the "Y" team, played handy basketball and cooperated well with George Yaron, forward. As a result they collected 14 field goals between them, accounting for 28 of the team's 47 points. High-scorer for the Paramount was D. H. Loh who netted 15 points.

The box-scores follow:—

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Mass : Some Further Questions

To the Editor of the "North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Your correspondent Mamba is so intent on proving the literalness of our Lord's words, "This is my body," that I venture to ask him on what grounds of exegesis is he going to satisfy me that when He said, "I am the Light of the world," He did not mean He was wave motion, or that when He called His disciples the salt of the earth they were not literally sodium chloride; or again, when He termed His followers sheep, they were not transmogrified into actual members of the ruminant species.

In all things it behoves one to be consistent, therefore when we read of St. Paul as saying, "Because there is one loaf, we, the many are one body: Hoti eis artos, hen soma hoi polloi esmen," (I Cor. 10.17), we must not take these words figuratively, (or rather, spiritually), but understand that all communicants form one vast physical organism.

The quotations from the "Catholic Encyclopaedia" aver that because Christ did not say, "My flesh is spirit," but, "My words are spirit," therefore we must not understand the passage figuratively. But what on earth does "My words are spirit," mean, if not that these words are to be spiritually applied? Or are we to resort to literalism and maintain that Christ's words were spirit forms.

In closing I wish to say that I have listened to the Catholic Radio Broadcast last Sunday, and whilst the replies may have sounded convincing to a quondam "most bigoted" Non-Conformist, they carried no conviction with a Non-Conformist whose long study of the Bible has convinced him that bigotry in any shape or form is but a synonym of ignorance, and therefore a thing to be pitied,—if bigots do not resort to violent means of enforcing their delusions.

Non-Bigoted Non-Conformist.

"The Blue Bird" : A Reader's Reflections

To the Editor of the "North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Of all pictures that have been shown in Shanghai during these few years, "The Blue Bird" is perhaps the most philosophical for the prosaically-inclined mind of average people today. The fact that this picture has drawn such a large audience during each show is an indication that the mentality of the Shanghai public is still appreciative of things ethical, and that the scramble for power and money, stopping at nothing to attain that aim, is only the product of ignorance by erroneously identifying vanity with happiness. In our everyday life, happiness has been meant to embody material abundance and satisfaction of our insatiable wants. The fallacy of such conception is allegorically yet convincingly brought to light by Shirley Temple's futile adventure to look for the "Blue Bird."

In fact, our "Blue Bird" can be found under our very roof, only if we know how to find it. Social and economical disorders, war and pestilence would disappear from the face of the earth, if everybody knew the true significance of contentment, adjusting oneself to economic, political and social environments. Looking to the flowers and hills and dales for inspiration does not necessarily mean less happiness than dishing out orders to others or accumulating more wealth in addition to what you have already possessed. But human beings are such, that the feeling of superiority over fellow-beings, the desire to excel others in wealth and power, and the aspiration to things that others have, invariably confuse the sentiments that constitute true happiness. To those whose wants are multitudinous, a visit to "The Blue Bird", now showing at the Grand Theatre will certainly help them take things easier.

Football : Bouquets for Players

To the Editor of the "North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Looking over last week's games, if I had a couple of roses to bestow, I would give them to Tivoniuk of the P.T.H., and N. Z. Lee of the Tung Hwa. The latter has probably already earned a hothouse full of them and is delightful to watch when not too robust. The younger man has a good idea of what a half-back should be. He is not of the hit-and-run variety.

Wanted : Words, Music of War Song

To the Editor of the "North-China Daily News"

Sir,—I, like many other Britishers I know of, have tried hard to get the song "There Will Always Be An England," but without success.

I wonder if one of your readers would be able and kind enough to inform me where I could buy, or at least borrow, the words and music.

Wife of Browder Will Be Deported to Russia

Washington, Nov. 1.

The Department of Justice has ordered the deportation to Russia of Mrs. Raissa Berkman Browder, the wife of Mr. Earl Browder, the Communist leader, on the ground that she entered the United States illegally. Mr. and Mrs. Browder were married in Moscow in 1926.—Reuter.

Roosevelt Dedicates Health Institute

Importance of Knowledge And Science Today

Bethesda, Md., Nov. 1.

The National defence programme must include "knowledge and science" well as military preparation, President Roosevelt said here yesterday in dedicating the U.S.$4,000,000 National Institute of Health.

The institute was built under supervision of the United States public health administration.

The national defence programme programme must include "knowledge and science," President Roosevelt said, because modern transportation has increased the danger of disease.

"Now we are less than one day by plane from the jungle type yellow fever of South America," President Roosevelt said. "We are less than two days from the sleeping sickness of equatorial Africa and we are only three days from cholera and bubonic plague.

"The ramparts we watch must be civilian as well as military," the President said.—United Press.

Seventy Years Ago

From the "North-China Daily News" of November 2, 1870

Notwithstanding that the unusually long prevalence of southerly and westerly winds has increased the temperature of the present autumn considerably above the average, and has at the same time increased the prevalence of fevers and other diseases, the people of this province have been fortunate in other respects. Seldom has so productive a harvest been known, taking the usual products of the soil and never has, in all probability, the yield of cotton, in proportion to the extent cultivated been so great. The absence of great heat and of high tides during the summer, and the long continuance of dry warm weather in the autumn have both tended to this end, while not only is the cotton crop large in quantity but excellent in quality. As a natural consequence of this state of affairs, the roads into the Settlements have presented in the early mornings, a curious appearance. Train after train of coolies carrying enormous bales of cotton, slung on bamboos across their shoulders, pass along the country roads, beginning their monotonous "he haw" long before the sun has appeared over the horizon. The cotton merchants' stores are crammed with the article being compressed into sacks for exportation, while cart-loads are to be seen passing the Bund at all hours of the day. Never, since the cotton famine in Europe led to a forced trade in 1862-66, has such a quantity of cotton passed through Shanghai. At present, with the low prices prevailing, the great rendezvous of the surplus stock has been the Kinleyuen wharf. Day after day have the S.S.N. Co.'s steamers been leaving, piled as full as the use of every available space could make them.

Britain Orders Freighters From U.S.

Washington, Nov. 1.

The fact that the British Government has ordered a large number of freighters from the United States was disclosed by Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, yesterday. He said he did not know whether the orders involved construction of a new shipyard in the United States for exclusive British use and declined to give details beyond saying that Britain had ordered a large number of one standardised type of freight ship.

Mr. Purvis, head of the British Purchasing Mission later explained that he was trying especially to buy 10,000-ton cargo vessels. The number to be purchased would depend largely on the number available. Some might be purchased in Canada, but the bulk of the business was expected to go to American shipyards, he added.—Reuter.

Allaying the anxiety of Japanese residents in Nanking over the supply of coal for the coming winter, Japanese Consular Police and the Japanese Residents' Corporation announced a plan of supplying coal through the ticket system, according to the "Shanghai Mainichi" yesterday.

"Oriental Affairs"

"Bureaucrats at Their Worst" is the title of the first editorial article in this month's "Oriental Affairs," followed by "British Rights at Weihaiwei," "The Eurasian Problem"—which is also discussed in a special article "Today's Problem of the Eurasians in the Far East" by "Mark Antony"—"The Netherlands East Indies," "American-Japanese Relations," "Philippine Independence." Special articles include "The Triple Alliance and After" by Ippei Fukuda, "Marquis Okuma"—a review of "The Life of Marquis Shigenobu Okuma," by Smimasa Iddittii—"Trade Standstill in Tientsin," by W. V. Pennell, "Bits of Old China," by William C. Hunter, a volume of reminiscences of the factory days in Canton, published in 1885, which is being produced in "Oriental Affairs" in serial form. Far Eastern Correspondence and other permanent features help to make up an interesting number.

28 Said Missing From St. Malo

The Admiralty last night announced that 28 persons were missing from the commandeered French steamer St. Malo, which was sunk by enemy action on the high seas last Saturday. Sixteen of those aboard the St. Malo were saved, the Admiralty statement said.—United Press.

China Builds Her First Wartime Vessel

Launched at Chungking; 15 More to Be Made

Chungking, Oct. 31.

The first steamer built in free China since the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities was launched here today without much ceremony. she is the ss. Ming Wen, owned by the Ming Sung Industrial Co.

Twenty two months were spent in building the steamer, which cost $4,000,000. Both the engines and the boilers were imported from England. Everything else was built with Chinese materials, the screws themselves being made of simple Chinese tools.

The ship will be placed on a run between Yangtze ports, and will carry passengers and freight.

The Ming Sung Company is at present constructing fifteen more ships, which will total 3,000 gross tons. The construction programme is being financed by special bonds which were issued to the public some time ago.—Havas.

GM GENERAL MOTORS

It's pretty conclusive proof of a real value when more people than ever before buy a certain make of car in a single year. That is true of the 1940 Buick.

It's pretty good proof of value when a higher percentage of all new-car buyers selects that car after looking the field over. That is also true of the 1940 Buick.

So, on sheer value, it should be clear that now the best buy is

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

ATTACK ITALY

To those who all along have been advocating that Great Britain should turn her attention to delivering heavy blows upon Italy is now added so important a figure as Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield, former Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, who expresses the view that the time has come to strike violently against this enemy. One of the earliest preachers of this doctrine was Field-Marshal Lord Birdwood, who, as far back as July, called for a swift onslaught on Italy, declaring that the time to hit home was fast approaching. The people of Italy never wanted the war, he declared, and the quickest way of getting them out was to show them the full meaning of the catastrophe Mussolini was forcing upon them. His plan was to make the most powerful assault possible on Italy by sea, and to develop an intensive bombing attack on the chief Italian ports such as Pola, Genoa, Trieste, Venice, Naples and Taranto. Asking the people of Britain to look at the matter from the enemy's point of view, Lord Birdwood gave six reasons why an assault along these lines should be launched:—Britain's moral superiority in the air; a larger military force in Britain than ever before; the British blockade continuing to tighten; help from America and the Empire increasing daily; portions of the German army diffused over an enormous front from Narvik to the Pyrenees and across to Rumania; and Mussolini's fighters continuing to "cover themselves with ignominy, and what they seem to consider the wonderful glory of running away."

Lord Chatfield in his broadcast declared that the laws of strategy required that the enemy's weak spot should be struck at with the utmost force. He claimed that Italy was the weak spot of the Axis, and that those sea and air forces which can be spared from the defence of Britain against Germany should be used against Italy now. The strength of the British fleet in the Mediterranean will be increased by the addition of the Greek navy, consisting of a cruiser, 23 torpedo craft and six submarines, a valuable addition to forces which are already superior to the Italian Navy, and assisting to give a predominance at sea which can be used effectively directly the use of the air arm obliges the Italian war vessels to cease their coyness and come out for the battle which the British are only too anxious to give them.

Lord Chatfield make a good point when he declares that though Italy's object may be to induce Britain to divide her forces and so weaken British resistance in Egypt, British sea and air-power would be of more value to help Greece than a large army sent to Salonica with all that it means in transport and supply. The knowledge that the British air force were striking heavy blows at all Italy's principal ports would do much to strengthen Greek moral which would undoubtedly be increased if the people knew that Britain was taking the war right home to the Italians. It would obviously be difficult to operate in the narrow waters between the heel of Italy and Albania, but even there as Lord Chatfield says there are always possibilities of night action, and, of course, attacks by air.

Though certain war industrial centres in northern Italy have received the attentions of the R.A.F. the bombing of military objectives in Italy has been relatively small. There is much to support the view that more should be done in this direction not only because of the damage which it is necessary to inflict, but because of the moral effect upon the Italians. It is known that the bombings which have been so methodically carried out over north-west Germany have had a very definite effect upon the Germans resident in those parts, and the time has surely arrived now when it should be possible to give the Italians a taste of the same medicine. Whether such action would ultimately induce Italy to sue for peace independently of Germany may be open to question; it is unlikely that Hitler would permit Mussolini to do any such thing, but the fact does remain that Italy has not yet had the war brought home to her, and the time is rapidly approaching, if it has not already arrived, when she should be subjected to those blows which Great Britain is quickly becoming increasingly able to deliver.

U.S. ELECTIONS

Whatever the United States electorate decides in the presidential election next week there can be not the slightest doubt that the Republican candidate, Mr. Wendell Willkie, will have made a very gallant electioneering fight. He has, it is stated, suffered considerably from the point of view of publicity recently because of events in Europe, and to that extent he has been handicapped, but the indications are, according to some observers that, even if he does not beat Mr. Roosevelt, he will give the latter a very good run for his money. Quite early in the campaign important Democrat figures commenced giving their support to Mr. Willkie, including so influential a newspaper as the "New York Times" which was an enthusiastic supporter of the President in the 1932 and 1936 elections. Another was the Oregon "Journal" a traditionally Democrat newspaper, while the example of those organs has been followed by men formerly high in the Democrat ranks.

Perhaps one of the most important speeches the Republican candidate has made was that which he delivered at San Francisco towards the end of September. In it he charged that Mr. Roosevelt's Administration had contributed to the downfall of European democracy, accusing Mr. Roosevelt of having wrecked the London Economic Conference of 1933, because he did not see in effect what an opportunity it was for the leader of the world's greatest democracy to do something tangible to rehabilitate the democratic world. Four years afterwards, when he had been inaugurated for his second term, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Willkie alleged, should have taken steps to repair the damage done in 1933, instead of which he undertook as his first great job the task of packing the U.S. Supreme Court. That was the time Mr. Willkie said when Mr. Roosevelt "had his golden opportunity to save world democracy in the eleventh hour—and don't forget that the very next year was the year of Munich." But though Mr. Willkie may criticize Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy of the past he is unable to do so with regard to present policies, and the large degree of agreement between the two great American parties may in itself have an important bearing upon next week's elections.

The intentions of the Republicans, if they succeed in securing office are best set forth in the terms of Mr. Willkie's San Francisco speech:—

"Those who are keeping the flag of peace and free government flying in the Old World have almost a right to ask that their comrades in the New World should....set an example of strength and stability...."

Wendell Willkie went on: "The loneliness of the United States is a direct result of the foreign policies of the last eight years. If Britain falls we are utterly and savagely alone. No nation on earth, except Britain, owes us anything but disillusionment and ill will.

"We must—we desperately must—rid ourselves of the fallacy that democracy can be defended with words, with poses, with political paraphernalia designed to impress the American people and no one else.

"We must send, and we must keep sending, aid to Britain, our first line of defence and our only remaining friend. We must aid her to the limit of prudence and effectiveness, as determined by impartial experts in this field.

"In the Pacific our best ends will be served by a free, strong and democratically progressive China, and we should render China economic assistance to that end. In addition I favour exploring the acquisition and development of Pacific air bases for the protection of our interests in that ocean.

"I favour the building of a defence system adequate to protect our soil from aggression from any quarter—a defence system so strong that none will ever dare to strike....

"We are a commercial people, and we must, therefore, build up the commerce of the world. We are a peaceful people, and we must, therefore, strengthen peace by giving other peoples—democratic peoples—our economic support...."

In the light of the reports which were current a short while back, relative to one of the periodical conferences between Hitler and Mussolini, to the effect that the Dictators had devised some epoch-making development calculated to have a profound effect upon the presidential elections, the above is interesting. They have produced nothing effective up to the present and the time is getting short before America goes to the polls. Indeed they will probably do nothing of the sort, for both the President and Mr. Willkie have made their positions so definite that nothing the Axis Powers can do can in any way be expected to bring about a change in the foreign policy of the United States. The nation has been brought to a realization of the menace which is to be found in the ambitions of the leaders of the aggressor states, and it does not matter which party is returned to power, for it will continue to give every possible assistance to Great Britain in a struggle which the people of the United States have been brought to perceive is their own as well.

London's Pride

In a recent Nazi broadcast conditions in London were described as intolerable, as a result of damage and terror caused by German raids. The broadcaster said:

It is almost impossible to do one's job (in London) these days. The authorities still simulate a certain kind of confidence, but this optimism is a bubble which is sure to burst one of these days....In order to restore the much shaken moral of the British public, British propaganda hits upon strange ideas. They try to divert attention from British inferiority in the air....The opinion gains ground that London ought to be evacuated.....The British public cower in damp air raid shelters.

This is what the Nazis would like their radio audiences to believe. And also, it is descriptions such as these that give the Nazi broadcasts their entertainment value for Londoners. No one would attempt to minimize the seriousness of the damage done to the empire's capital, but in comparison with the Nazi boasts of what they have accomplished, it is negligible. This is what an American correspondent wrote after living through the so-called blitzkrieg:—

Every morning the people of London felt the urge to climb to some high place to see the damage suffered during the night. Of all the great cities in Europe, London alone is behaving with pride. When this is over in years to come men will speak and say "I was a soldier," "I was a sailor," but others with equal pride will affirm "I was a citizen of London."

Could the lie be given more effectively to the Nazi braggart?

Worse Confounded

There seems to be some confusion of thought over the position of Thailand vis-à-vis Indo-China—if "thought" is the correct word to employ. There have been various suggestions from Japanese sources that Great Britain is the inspiration of the Siamese demands for certain territorial concessions from the French. These suggestions have been taken seriously in one quarter only. Elsewhere Thailand is considered to be so closely linked with Japan that the American Government has indicated by its refusal to deliver planes ordered some time ago that it includes that little kingdom within the embargo imposed upon certain exports to aggressors. Be that as it may, a local Japanese daily yesterday expressed sympathy with the Siamese people, whom it sees about to be deceived by "perfidious Albion." The daily attributes some remarkable plans to Great Britain, among them being the secession of southern Indo-China from the Vichy Government and the establishment there of a colony under General de Gaulle, which is to be financed by Jewish millionaires living in Indo-China. It is not known how many Jewish millionaires are living in Indo-China, the latest returns being silent upon that subject. But there are so many facets of Axis propaganda of the stupidest type displayed in this news that the item is worthy of examination. In the first place, it is anti-British, since Britain is again depicted as the author of deep-laid plots. In the second place, it is anti-French, since it is directed against the unity of a French colony. In the third place it is anti-Jewish, since the Jewish millionaires are alleged to be "at it again." The journal quoted ends up with the thought: "If this news is true we feel sorry for Thailand, since it can only be tragic." And with this comment this journal heartily associates itself.

ALONG THE HIGHWAYS

Oct. 21.—Local climatic conditions are very fickle: they change so quickly and so often: only a week ago, we were shivering out in the country, while this afternoon we were enjoying brilliant sunshine. We were proceeding along Avenue Haig and when quite close to a place famous for its "Ham and Eggs" we noticed numerous parked cars. Curiosity got the better of us and we found ourselves entering the Cathedral School gates. That ever-blooming perennial—Mr. Loh—greeted us with a cheery "good afternoon" as we followed the crowd into the school garden. We soon discovered that it was sports day: a most important day in the minds of the younger generation and many parents were already waiting impatiently for the starting signal when we arrived. Many Mammies had brought along their knitting—perhaps war work—while numerous Daddies, enjoying their pipes, were probably discussing the chances of their offspring in the 2.30 race. There were no "bookies" present: perhaps they were not allowed to operate: it was probably a good thing, for winners were difficult to pick, all runners were "all out" to win. The race track was roped off and St George's, St Andrew's and St Patrick's crosses and many Union Jacks added a touch of colour to the scene. Weeping Willows formed a background pleasing to the eye while several Autumn-tinted Maples and a hedge of Hibiscus formed a line of demarcation between some of the competitors and the track Several herbaceous hibiscus, close to the terrace, looked ready to "call it a day" and it would appear that they had been waiting for sports day to come and go, before going into their Winter sleep. The prize table, covered with a Union Jack, reminded us of something that we shall keep a secret. Promptly at 2.15, the bell rang for muster and we were entertained by an aeroplane practising power-diving while we were waiting for the first race to begin. We did not have long to wait before some tiny tots started the proceedings by getting off to a perfect start. We noticed one boy competing against twenty-five girls in one race: poor chap! he dare not win!!! but he was brave enough to come in tenth. We like the style of a few of the competitors: many we did not recognize; but one—Renée Hubert—came romping home first on two occasions and even repeated her success when she was encumbered with a sack. The high-jump girls made a most graceful job of their part in the proceedings while runners in the 220 yards race received much encouragement from their fellow competitors behind the ropes. We were sorry when a "late for school" race began, for it reminded us that we were late for an appointment and we had to rush away from a pleasant place on a perfect day.—W.J.K.

A PARSON'S LOG

From A Correspondent

In the English calendar November 1 is known as the Festival of All Saints, a feast celebrated in honour of all Saints, known or unknown. From an Oxford dictionary I find that the term "saint" is generally used in two senses: (a) In ecclesiastical use it denotes a canonized person; one of those persons who are formally recognized by the Church as having by their exceptional holiness of life attained an exalted station in heaven, and as being entitled in an eminent degree to the veneration of the faithful; (b) In everyday use it signifies a pure, holy person. When I was a boy my thoughts of saints were chiefly associated with stained-glass windows and renowned apostles of the Church in whose triumphs we were taught to rejoice, and by whose examples we were instructed to profit. Now that I have become a man I have come to see that all people are called to be saints, not "saints abroad and devils at home" to use an old proverb, but men and women who, facing life fearlessly, will passionately follow after beauty, goodness and truth.

The New Testament teaching is, unquestionably, that all men are potential saints—the realization and attainment of full sanctity is found in complete cooperation with God and with one's fellowmen. It has been well said that "it is not the extraordinary deeds that make the saint, but 'doing the ordinary things extraordinarily well'."

In these modern days it is frequently thought that to struggle for Christian sanctity and holiness is rather old-fashioned and somewhat effeminate. While most people recognize that Christianity has made an invaluable contribution to our civilization, they argue that since civilization is now grown up it may dispense with its governess. Let us ask, what are the characteristics of the Christian man? In his achievement, he does as regards conduct and character fall short morally of the man he knows he ought to be; but in aspiration and purpose he is ever seeking and striving for that perfection of life that becomes a child of the perfect Father. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." A life which is indifferent to saintliness is a worthless, hollow sham. Only he is a Christian who has Christ's Spirit, and the fruit of the Spirit is love, which does no ill to a neighbour, but seeks to do all the good that it can. In the Christian life there are two distinct features. The first is fervour, zeal, enthusiasm. An experience of the reality of God as love moves the emotions. Coldness, cynicism, and indifference depart. There are joy, comfort, peace, confidence, courage. A life which shows these qualities, and surely the world never needed them more, is an attractive life; it is a persuasive witness to the reality of goodness. Perhaps it is because the life of so many of us is tepid and timid that people are repelled, and not attracted to Christ. The second characteristic of the Christian life is power, energy, might. When the emotions are moved, the will is strengthened. Psychology has shown how much the mind can do to relieve pain, to release from weakness, and to restore strength. When the human will, unreservedly surrendered to God, becomes the channel of the activity of God by His Spirit, then even in weakness the divine strength is fully felt. Paul insists again and again that we can be more than conquerors through Him who loves us, and in love imparts Himself to us. We can do all things through Him who strengthens us. Divine resources are at the disposal of suffering humanity, and because this is so, every man is a potential saint. Sainthood is possessing God, and God is ever waiting to give Himself to those who seek Him.

"As Brother Lawrence had found such an advantage in walking in the presence of God, it was natural for him to recommend it earnestly to others; but his example was a stronger inducement than any arguments he could propose. His very countenance was edifying; such a sweet and calm devotion appearing in it, as could not but affect the beholders. And it was observed, that in the greatest hurry of business in the kitchen, he still preserved his recollection and heavenly-mindedness. He was never hasty nor loitering, but did each thing in its season, with an even uninterrupted composure and tranquillity of spirit. 'The time of business,' said he, 'does not with me differ from the time of prayer; and in the noise and clatter of my kitchen, while several persons are at the same time calling for different things, I possess God in as great tranquillity as if I were upon my knees at the Blessed Sacrament'."

Finishing Touch

Making the rounds in search of an apartment, a lady happened into a new building with an impressive, modernistic lobby. It was completely unfurnished, though, and she remarked to the superintendent that some tables and chairs would improve its looks. "Oh, sure," he said. "We're going to fix it up nice—couple of tables, chairs, a sofa, and a love nest in the corner."

Japanese Admiration of Londoners' Spirit

Despatch to "Asahi" Describes Calmness, Composure Of Britons in Danger from Attacks by Air

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

"I CANNOT help but express my amazement at and admiration for the people of London who can be so calm and composed under such strained circumstances. Everything goes on as usual, —the trains, the trams, the buses and the office—." Thus writes a special correspondent of the "Asahi" in a despatch from London. Describing his visit to the British capital the writer says, contrary to anticipation, his arrival at London by plane from Lisbon airport was marked by neither thrill nor adventure.

The reporter experienced his first disillusionment when he arrived at the waiting room of the Lisbon airport where he saw a young lady with her four-year-old daughter looking as calm and unconcerned as if she were waiting for the next train at a country railway station. The little girl was playing with a doll with the happiest expression that a child could have.

All expectation and illusions of thrill and devastation vanished when the reporter saw this scene. The quiet entrance into London is described in the correspondent's own words as follows:

I took the plane at Lisbon, which is the centre of all air transportation in Europe. There were 11 passengers including myself. The motors of the huge ship suddenly roared, and we were already sailing through the air at a terrific speed. Wet clouds hung low.

"As soon as we passed over the Iberian peninsula I kept my eyes open for a British convoy, or for a German U-boat. But the Atlantic was calm with no sign of anything—not even a speck. I asked the boy our position, but he knew nothing. In fact he knew nothing until he announced that we had arrived. Shortly afterwards, the blinds were lowered, and I leaned back and fell asleep.

No Signs of Bombing

"The setting sun illuminated the sea with a bright orange glow as our plane touched the waters of an unknown harbour. We saw a number of big ships anchored as we sped to shore on a launch that had come to meet us. But no sign of bombed buildings or burned houses.

"Owing to the delay in the customs inspection, it was already dark when I arrived in the port town. Motor cars and buses, with lights as dim as the glow from a cigarette, sped past each other with no congestion. The boy from the hotel took me to the police station where I registered my arrival. He held my arm all the way. I saw three searchlights illuminating the clouds, and asked my companion whether a raid was expected tonight. He answered in a most nonchalant tone of voice, 'We have them most every night, but you don't have to worry.'

The Real Thing

"Shortly after this I heard the first shrieks of the sirens,—my first experience of a real raid. But nothing happened. After a good rest, I took the second train to London the next morning. On the way I saw two trenches, but no sign of where bombs might have dropped.

"Before long I sighted the towers of Westminster Abbey and the Parliament buildings. The train arrived on time. When my taxi was passing over the Thames, I heard the first sirens since my arrival in London. The roads were congested, and the cars seemed to take their time. The people on the streets showed no signs of excitement. They practically seemed to ignore the sirens. No one ran into the shelters. Everything went on as usual.

"On the second day after my arrival, I took a walk to see the evidence of the German bombings. The buildings that had been struck were completely destroyed. The ruins were a terrible sight, but the buildings remaining were in perfect condition. The contrast, side by side, was an extremely strange sight.—Reuter.

C.N.A.C. Aeroplane Disaster Questions

American Correspondents Fire Queries at Japanese Spokesman

Insistent questions were fired at the Japanese spokesmen at yesterday's press conference here by American correspondents on the shooting down of the C.N.A.C. transport plane which resulted in the death of "Foxey" Kent, well-known American, who was piloting the plane.

The navy spokesman said that he could make no statement, that he only knew from despatches received here that Japanese aircraft had shot down an enemy plane. He was immediately asked if it was the policy of the Japanese to shoot down civilian transports flying their established routes or whether it was an accident.

The navy spokesman replied after a pause that judging by reports, the raider must have thought the plane was Chinese, but that he was not prepared to discuss Japanese policy.

"Could all five have been wrong?" demanded another American correspondent.

"All five were combat planes with only one man in each" returned the spokesman.

Easy to Tell Difference

But the correspondent was not satisfied and went on quickly saying that Japanese pilots were trained aviators and should know the difference between a civil transport and Chinese war planes and added that even a civilian could tell the difference.

"Not only that, but the transport was conspicuously marked" insisted another American correspondent, who had stated that it was of importance to Americans, who were part owners of the line, to know just what the policy of the Japanese was with regard to transports.

The navy spokesman said that he did not feel he could discuss the matter.

The army spokesman, Col. Saito, described the Chinese entry into Nanning and Shaoshing after the Japanese withdrawal as similar to the picking-up of a discarded cigarette butt by a poor beggar.

When a correspondent asked if the Japanese were evacuating Ichang, Col. Saito declared that the report was merely the expression of Chungking hope that that cigarette butt would be thrown away soon.

More of a Cigar Butt

"Couldn't Ichang be classified as a cigar butt" asked a newspaperman.

The army spokesman denied that the evacuation of Nanning was a preliminary to a general withdrawal from South China, emphasizing "Only Nanning," in answer to another question.

The army spokesman also denied any knowledge of defection to Chungking in Pootung saying he had "not heard of any."

In answer to a question following a statement on the alleged bombing of two bridges on the Burma Road, the navy spokesman admitted that the destruction of the bridges over the Mekong and Salween Rivers would not stop traffic completely.

While the quantity and character of the goods going over the Burma Road were not of great importance in the progress of the war, the destruction of the bridges was important chiefly because of its effect on the enemy's moral, the Japanese navy spokesman stated.

Pictures of a bomb exploding on the Kungkuo Bridge over the Mekong River were shown to newspapermen at the conference.

Chinese Woman Wounded In West Hongkew

Small Crimes Reported In the Morning

A Chinese woman sustained wounds to her face and shoulder when a shooting took place in North Chekiang Road at 2.10 a.m. yesterday. The occupants of house 5, Lane 307 North Chekiang Road, were awakened by someone climbing on the roof top and went on to the drying stage to find out who it was.

There the couple, a Chinese piece-goods dealer and his wife, saw the silhouette of a man, who suddenly fired several shots, wounding the woman who was later taken to the Lester Chinese Hospital in an S.F.B. ambulance. No arrests were made.

Three other minor crimes were reported in the Settlement, the first being committed at 4 a.m. when three Chinese, one of them armed with a pistol, held up a Chinese pedestrian in Ferry Road a few steps from Connaught Road, and robbed him of $8. In addition to taking the money, the highwaymen disrobed their victim, leaving him minus his long gown.

At about 4.10 a.m. five unarmed men held up another Chinese pedestrian and robbed him of ten dollars. The quintet, speaking Shanghai dialect, had no difficulty in disappearing in the darkness. This crime was committed near the corner of Markham and West Soochow Roads.

The third minor of the day took place at 12.45 p.m. when four armed robbers, in possession of three pistols, entered a Chinese house at 10 Chibli Road and robbed the occupants of money and valuables. No estimated value was given.

High Cost of Living

Prices Soar in October Despite Better Exchange Council Report Shows

A report issued by the Municipal Council regarding the cost of living of foreign salaried employees here in October emphasized that although foreign exchange improved considerably during the month, retail prices increased instead of being correspondingly decreased. The report reiterated what the Council pointed out in previous reports that local retailers have made a practice of immediately increasing the prices of imported goods whenever there is a fall in the exchange rate, contending that replacement costs have gone up, while the downward adjustment of prices as a consequence of improved exchange rates has seldom been found.

October, it was stated, produced additional proof that no lowering in prices ave followed improvements in exchange rates, a fact which, it was stated, has been well established by statistical study of the correlation between local retail prices and foreign exchange rates.

Rental Investigation

Owing to the continuous increase in rentals, the report went on, another investigation was conducted in October to ascertain the extent of the increases. It was learned from record-keeping families that 55.88 per cent. of them had their rentals raised in October. Of the various types of houses increases in rents are 2.19 per cent. for terrace houses, 3.17 per cent. for apartments, 7.02 per cent. for detached and semi-detached houses and 8.34 per cent. for single rooms. General rent indices for various nationalities for October are: American 137.55; British, 136.81; Russian, 134.72 and others 140.71. The increases over the prevouis quarter range from 4.62 per cent. in the British group to 5.92 per cent. in the Others group.

The Chinese cost of living index shows increases in the prices of rice and fuel, two of the most essential daily necessities to the livelihood of the workers. Shortage of native rice has forced the workers to rely entirely on the imported cereal the price of which is inordinately high owing to foreign exchange, freight rates, etc. The report then continues:

Fuel Group Up

"Had not the price of rice improved considerably toward the latter part of the month through an increase in the exchange value of the Chinese dollar, the October food index of 538.74, showing a gain of 10.21 per cent. over September, would be even higher. Heavier increase is found in the fuel group with its index at 515.11, showing a rise of 12.05 per cent. Indices of the clothing and miscellaneous groups have increased 4.33 and 6.07 per cent., reaching 352.05 and 445.29 respectively. The October general index, as a result, has surpassed considerably the 500 mark, reaching 524.43 as against 481.66 in September, thus registering a further rise of 42.77 points or 8.88 per cent. within the brief period of one month. The purchasing power of the dollar is now reduced to 19.07 cents of its 1936 value.

Chile Congratulates Ajax on Victory

London, Oct. 31.

The Admiralty has received the following telegram from Santiago in Chile: "Victims of the Conception earthquake warmly congratulate the Captain, officers and men of the Ajax on their great victory in the Mediterranean battle, and pay homage to those who fell gloriously in defence of their country and of civilization."

Conception was one of the Chilean cities severely damaged by an earthquake in January, 1939, when the Chilean Government accepted the offer of the British Government to make use of the British cruisers Ajax and Exeter to transport supplies from Valparaiso to the stricken area. —British Official Wireless.

Japan Warned Against Soviet Pact Optimism

"Clandestine Negotiations" By U.S., Britain Seen

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

The "Hochi," which has been persistently demanding a non-aggression pact between Soviet Russia and Japan, today warned against "complacent optimism" regarding future negotiations with the Russians.

The journal asserted that the Soviet Union was pursuing an opportunist policy, standing between the Totalitarian and Democratic Powers.

It is a well-known fact, the "Hochi" pointed out, that clandestine negotiations are underway, with Britain, the United States and Chungking desperately making efforts to estrange Soviet-Japanese relations. Chungking is sending Dr. Sun Fo, president of the Legislative Yuan, to Moscow in an effort to upset the Soviet-Japanese relations, the "Hochi" said.—United Press.

Mr. Kobayashi Returns To Japan

Report on Progress of N.E.I. Talks to Be Made

Kobe, Nov. 1.

Mr. Ichizo Kobayashi, Japanese Minister of Commerce and Industry, who headed the Japanese delegation in negotiations at Batavia with the Netherlands East Indies authorities, returned to Japan this afternoon to make an interim report on the progress of negotiations.

The ss. Michiran Maru, in which Mr. Kobayashi travelled, entered the local harbour with her flag at half mast in mourning for Major-General Itsuo Ishimoto, member of the Japanese delegation, who died at Batavia and whose ashes were brought back in the vessel.

The Japanese Minister of Commerce and Industry will proceed to Tokyo tonight by train.—Domei.

Japanese Ambassador To France Returns

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

Mr. Setsuzo Sawada, former Japanese Ambassador to France, arrived at Tokyo Station yesterday afternoon. —Domei.

Well-Known British Playwright Due

Mr. Noel Coward, the internationally known British playwright, is due to arrive in Shanghai today from Japan and will broadcast over station XCDN at 8.15 p.m. today, wave length 208 metres frequency 1440 kilocycles. The subject he has chosen is not yet known, but in all probability it will deal with British war efforts, following the line of his lectures in America.

Kent Hop Pickers Answer Nazis

Wages to Be Use to Buy Spitfire; Machine-gunning Of Workers in Gardens

Hop pickers in Kent are up against the Nazis for having machine-gunned pickers in the fields, while on the mission of "frightfulness" over Britain. According to a letter written to Shanghai by a 65 years old Englishwoman, the ladies of Kent have donned over-alls and gone into the hop gardens to pick hops and let their wages go towards the purchase of a Spitfire. Extracts from the letter follow:—

Somewhere in Kent—September.

In normal times hop picking in Kent is done by London East-Enders who take the opportunity of having three or four weeks every year in the fresh wholesome air of the Kentish Hop Gardens.

This year, owing to the war, there has been a considerable falling off in the supply of Cockney hop pickers and the work has devolved on the local communities.

The Nazis have not lost the opportunity of releasing their frightfulness even on the hop gardens and a few days ago they machine-gunned some pickers in a garden at G——

This unwarranted act has spurred the ladies of Kent to retaliatory action. They have donned their oldest clothes and have gone into the gardens to pick hops; the proceeds of their labours being donated to the purchase of a Spitfire. The farmers are paying one shilling for every three bushels picked as against the same amount for five or six bushels paid before the war. The crop is above average.

Boys from a well known Public School are acting as tally-clerks.

When this letter was written Nazi planes were coming over Kent in their hundreds and the noise was terrific. However the people have got quite used to it and no one seems to worry.

Such is the spirit in England.

Pirate Editions in Hongkong Seized

Many Court Cases Against Sale of Photographic Copies of Books

The sale of "pirate" editions of books in Hongkong has been the subject of a number of court cases, resulting in the prohibition of the sale of these books in the Colony. The books, mostly school text books, are believed to have been printed in Shanghai, and imported to Hongkong by Chinese here. Action was taken in Hongkong on the grounds of infringement of copyright, and it is expected that it will have a salutary effect on the trade of such works there. Fines were imposed on book shops selling "pirates," and copies of the books were seized.

A quantity of school books were displayed at Central Magistracy on October 14, when the Hongkong Book Service was summoned before Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., for knowingly selling copies of certain works in which copyright subsists.

The offences were said to have occurred on October 1 and September 20, and the complainants were Macmillan and Co., Ltd., and Longmans Green and Co., Ltd. Books of the former Company were Hall's Complete School Algebra, Hall and Stevens' Shorter School Geometry, and Tipping's Middle School Composition Pt. 1. Volumes of the second firm were the New Catholic Readers (four volumes) and "The World, a General Geography."

A Shanghai Firm

Mr. Loseby said that, according to his instructions, the Hongkong Book Service was a Shanghai firm. The books in Court were obviously photographic copies of the copyright books.

Mr. King tendered two books to Mr. Sheldon for comparison. The price of a genuine book of General Geography was $6, and the price of the "pirated version" was $2, said Mr. King. It had come to the knowledge of the publishers of the genuine books that not only the defendant firm but other shops were selling the type of books produced in Court.

Mr. King asked Mr. Sheldon to inflict such a penalty as would deter other shops in Hongkong who were carrying on this practice, also to make an order for the confiscation of the books already seized and that any remaining books in defendant firm be handed over to him (Mr. King).

Mr. Loseby said that to his knowledge, these "pirated" books had been sold quite freely in past years. He was prepared to give an undertaking that all remaining infringing copies in defendant firm would be handed over to Mr. King.

A fine of $100 on each summons was imposed by Mr. Sheldon.

Missions Support Encouraged

Lord Halifax Gives Views In Reply to Inquiry; Work Should Continue

Support for foreign missions was voiced by Lord Halifax, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a recent letter written in answer to an inquiry made about the feelings of many former backers of missions, who believed that war charities and other war funds should take precedence over their contributions towards the spread of Christianity abroad.

Lord Halifax addressed the following letter to Dr. William Paton, secretary of the International Missionary Council, in regard to the support of foreign missionary work at the present time:

Should Continue

Foreign Office S.W.1.

"I have received your letter of 29th July in which you say that some of those who regularly support the work of foreign missions are in doubt whether it is right in time of war to send money out of the country, and also whether war charities and war work ought not to take precedence over everything else.

"As you know, action already taken by several Government departments has shown the desire of the British Government that the services rendered by Christian missions should continue. I am myself quite clear that the support of foreign missionary work in time of war is an essential part of the Church's witness. I should much regret if the responsibility which Christian people rightly feel towards the special needs and charities that press upon us in war time should lead them to desert this permanent and universal Christian obligation.

"Payments overseas which involve a loss of exchange, are, of course, an increasing difficulty in these times, but, as you point out in your letter, by far the greatest part of British missionary work is carried on in countries whose currencies are linked with sterling. In other cases I understand that the Treasury will look at applications from well-recognized bodies for transfer for missionary work as sympathetically as they reasonably can, having regard to the circumstances as they exist from time to time. (Signed)—HALIFAX.

Australia Ready for Travellers

Facilities Provided by Bureau

As it is understood that some residents of the Far East are reluctant to send their wives and families to Australia because they have no friends or connections to meet them on arrival and advise them regarding accommodation or other matters with which they are not familiar, the Australian National Travel Association points out that there is already in existence in each State a Government-controlled Tourist Bureau that provides this very service.

Arrangements will gladly be made for Bureau officers to meet any overseas liner on arrival at the Australian State capital cities—Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Adelaide and Fremantle. The function of the Bureaux is to provide the fullest information regarding travel and accommodation in any part of Australia, as well as to arrange any bookings desired. Inquiries of a general nature will also be attended to by the Bureau officials and no charge of any kind is made for these services, other than the usual rates for any transportation or accommodation arranged through the Bureaux.

Where it is desired that visitors to Australia be specially met on arrival by Government Tourist Bureau Officers, a letter giving the names of the visitors concerned, the name of the vessel by which they are travelling, and the port at which they propose to disembark, should be sent in advance, by air mail, to the General Manager, Australian National Travel Association, Melbourne, and he will make the necessary arrangements with the Government Tourist Bureau concerned. A copy of the letter might also be sent direct to the Director of the Government Tourist Bureau concerned at the disembarkation port.

The addresses of the Government Tourist Bureaux are:—Sydney—Challis House, Martin Place; Melbourne—272 Collins Street; Brisbane—Anzac Square, B. 8; Adelaide—King William Street; Perth—28-30 Forrest Place; Hobart—Corner Macquarie and Murray Sts.

If detailed information is desired regarding any phase of life in Australia, the Australian National Travel Association will be glad to supply it.

WEST COAST LIFE BUILDING
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., U.S.A.

A Bulwark of Defense

As a method of building up a secure, non-fluctuating estate — a bulwark of defense against the unknowable future — the importance of life insurance can hardly be overestimated. And its ultimate aim — adequate financial security for a family — is so vital that it must surely be considered a necessity by all clear-thinking people.

FROM DAY TO DAY

THE weekly report of refugee work for October 31 follows:—No. of Camps under inspection by Public Health Department 13; No. of refugees therein 15,395.

MR. Chen Kung-po, President of the Legislative Yuan of the National Government in Nanking, will be appointed Mayor of the Shanghai Special Municipality, according to the "Shanghai Mainichi."

FOR the purpose of raising funds to finance the study of music for enthusiastic students who have no means to do so, the Music Association of the McTyeire School is sponsoring a concert which will be held at 9.15 p.m. on November 15, at the Community Church on Avenue Petain.

THE November issue of "The China Digest incorporating Spotlite" has its usual good show of photographs and compressed articles which are easy to read. Among them may be singled out a description of Chinese birth and death ceremonies, which is informative and very well illustrated.

REV. Lacy L. Little has been asked to broadcast for the Shanghai Anti-Tuberculosis Association today from 7 to 7.30 p.m., on "Spiritual care of Tubercular Patients" from XMHD (through the courtesy of the Shanghai Christian Broadcasting Association) operating on a frequency of 760 kilocycles, wave length 395 metres.

MATTINS in the Holy Trinity Cathedral on Sunday morning will be the occasion of the annual Church Parade of the Girl Guides and Brownies. There will be the usual ceremonial procession in which the flags will be presented and placed at the foot of the choir stalls and the Corps flag upon the altar. Guides and Brownies will occupy the seats in the centre of the Nave. The Dean will deliver an appropriate address.

CORFU, the Greek-owned island on which Italy has cast a designing eye, contains the magnificent villa Achilleion. This the Kaiser acquired after the death of its builder, the Empress Elizabeth of Austria. The beautiful Empress had a great love for Corfu, and spent upwards of £3,000,000 on the villa and its surroundings. The Kaiser secured the property for £40,000, but circumstances have prevented him from visiting it for more than a quarter of a century.

GENERAL Wu Te-chen, Minister of Overseas Affairs of the Chinese Government, has left Batavia to continue his goodwill tour in Sumatra, Medan and other cities in the Netherlands East Indies, says a Chungking message to the "Sin Wan Pao." He arrived at Batavia from Manila on October 18, and has called upon various high Dutch officials including the Governor-General of the Netherlands East Indies and high naval, military and civil officials. A sum of C$1,000,000 has been raised from the Chinese communities in the Netherlands East Indies for the Chinese Government.

THE Navy Y.M.C.A. wishes to acknowledge with sincere thanks the donations of books, magazines American newspapers and different games, etc., received from the following persons during the month of October:—Mrs. W. Awad, Mrs. R. T. Bellaire, A. U. Fox, Mrs. J. S. Barr, Mrs. H. A. Wilbur, Mrs. C. L. Boynton, J. Mascarello, Mrs. A. Hart Burling, Francis Lee, Mrs. M. L. Moody, Mrs. C. T. McClellan, R. P. Atkin, Mrs. A. F. Kimball, Mrs. O. E. Vongehr, J. Fistere, Miss E. H. Falck, C. F. Wolsiffer, Mrs. E. F. Rauch and others. The Navy Y.M.C.A. is always pleased to receive books, magazines, games and playing cards for use among Service men.

THE appointment of a preparatory committee for the National People's Congress was announced in an order issued by the Chinese National Government in Chungking on Thursday, states the "Sin Wan Pao." High government officials appointed to the committee include Mr. Yeh Chu-tsang, Secretary-General of the Kuomintang, General Chang Chun, Secretary-General to the Supreme National Defence Council, Dr. Wang Shih-chieh, Minister of Publicity, Mr. Chow Chung-chueh, Minister of Industries, Mr. Chen Li-fu, Minister of Education, General Chiang Tso-ping, Minister of Interior, and Mr. Wei Huai. General Chiang Tso-ping and Mr. Yeh Tsu-chang were respectively appointed Chairman and Vice-Chairman, and Mr. Chang Tao-fan as Secretary-General.

SHIPPING NEWS

The ss. Taiyo Maru, express liner of the Toa Kaiun Kaisya, is scheduled to leave Shanghai this morning at 7 o'clock, on her return trip to Kobe direct. She arrived here on Wednesday morning, tying up alongside the company's Wayside Wharf. The liner carries mail and passengers.

* * *

The freighter ss. Hakka Maru, of the D.K.K., arrived in Shanghai yesterday afternoon from Tientsin, via Dairen and Tsingtao, docking alongside the company's Whangpoo Wharf. The Hakka Maru will sail for Tsingtao and Tientsin tomorrow afternoon, after discharging a quantity of general cargo here.

* * *

The ss. Shanghai Maru, express liner of the Tao Kaiun Kaisya, is due to arrive in Shanghai tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, coming from Nagasaki direct. She will tie up at the company's Wayside Wharf, where she will remain overnight, sailing on November 4 on her return trip to Japan. The liner carries mail and passengers.

* * *

The ss. D'Artagnan, fast mail liner of the Messageries Maritimes Line, is expected to leave Shanghai this morning for Kobe direct. She arrived in port on Wednesday afternoon from Saigon and Manila, docking alongside Hunt's Wharf, Shanghai side. Besides passengers and mail she brought a large quantity of rice for local discharge.

* * *

The D.K.K. Liner, ss. Dairen Maru, operating on the Shanghai-Tsingtao-Dairen express run, which arrived in Shanghai yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, will leave on her return trip to the northern ports tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. She docked alongside the company's Whangpoo Wharf; outgoing passengers are requested to go on board direct from the jetty.

* * *

The Swedish motor vessel, Vasaholm, of the Maersk Line, is due to arrive in Shanghai tomorrow morning, when she will dock alongside the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf, Shanghai side. She comes here from New York, via Norfolk, Savannah, the Panama Canal, Los Angeles, Yokohama and Kobe. The Vasaholm, which is several days late, brings 950 tons of general cargo for discharge here. She will sail for Manila direct on leaving Shanghai.

* * *

The ss. Kobe Maru, new liner of the Toa Kaiun Kaisya, entered port for the first time yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The liner, which is operating on the Shanghai-Nagasaki express run, docked alongside the company's Yangtszepoo Wharf, where she will remain for two days, sailing on her return trip to Japan tomorrow morning at 8.30, carrying mail and passengers. The ship will move to the Wayside Wharf today, and passengers should embark direct from this wharf.

Vessels Arriving To-day

The following particulars in connection with vessels due to arrive today are based upon information available yesterday evening.

From LOS ANGELES: Monterey, due this afternoon, Buoys 11-12.

Due at Future Dates

All vessels are listed under their terminal port. The first date is that of the ship's departure from that port, and the second is the date she is due to arrive in Shanghai. Where a ship's name is duplicated it indicates the port of call last visited.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

Survey of Canning Industry in India

Simla, Nov. 1.

A survey of the canning industry in India is being undertaken with the object of ascertaining how far the Indian Army can be made independent of oversea supplies.

Large quantities of fruit, fish, butter and cheese are at present imported from abroad to supplement Indian production, which includes fruit and condiments canned in Bombay, Bengal, the United Provinces, Punjab, Madras and Baluchistan and many varieties of fish canned in Madras.

Milk products, which were formerly imported from Holland and Denmark, are now obtained from Australia.—Reuter.

Yesterday's Business

Yesterday's market again held extremely steady, with very little change in price, the liquidation which had to be done being easily absorbed. All issues in the industrial list had their support, the turnover in most cases being quite heavy. Dutch rubber issues were again particularly strong, and the public appears to be taking a more optimistic view of the situation generally.

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, Oct. 31.

The cotton market early ruled barely steady on small liquidation, which was quickly absorbed. Thereafter, prices turned firm on good commission house and speculative buying, continued Japanese house purchases and in sympathy with a firm stock market. Closing quotations ranged from unchanged to 6 points up from the previous final levels.

Rubber futures ruled quiet, with a firm undertone. Speculators bought, while business continued to be on the light side. The action of stocks aided sentiment. At the last callover, gains from 10 to 15 points were recorded.

Favourable factors influencing higher prices in the Chicago Wheat Pit included a fairly good export demand, a tight cash situation, general buying and the upturn witnessed in the stock market. At the final bell, gains from 1 to 1⅛ cents were registered.

U.S. China Trade Is Increasing

Imports for First Nine Months Up 16 Per Cent Exports Nearly 80%

Washington, Nov. 1.

Large gains in United States' trade with China, with a large and favourable balance for China, were reported yesterday by the Department of Commerce.

The report covered the first nine months of this year and showed that trade between the two nations had increased greatly despite the Sino-Japanese war.

Trade in both directions was greater than the last normal year, namely 1936.

Imports From China

Imports from China this year were valued at US$70,472,000 a 74 per cent. increase over last year and 16 per cent. higher than the same period in 1936.

Exports

Exports to China were valued at US$62,250,000 a rise of nearly 80 per cent. over the same period last year.

China's favourable trade balance exceeded US$8,000,000 compared to US$5,000,000 for the first nine months of last year.

Experts said that larger shipments to the United States of Chinese raw silk and tung oil, as well as higher prices, accounted for most of the monetary gains.

Chinese imports from the United States were largely raw cotton and tobacco.

Exports to Japan

Meanwhile, exports from the United States to Japan for the first nine months of this year were valued at US$165,000,000, compared with imports from Japan of US$104,000,000 giving Japan an unfavouarble balance of over US$60,000,000.

Exports to Japan in the same period last year totalled US$155,000,000 and imports were US$102,000,000.

Philippines Trade

Exports to the Philippines from the United States for the first nine months of this year totalled US$73,-705,000 as compared to US$68,735,000 for same period last year.

Imports from the Philippines for the period were valued at US$68,439,-000 as compared with US$73,186,-000 for the same period last year.—United Press.

London Stocks

Thursday's Closing Quotations

London, Oct. 31.

Business on the London Stock Exchange today was small and mainly confined to investment issues. Nevertheless, the trend of the market was generally firmer, with British gilt-edged securities and home rail debentures appreciating. Kaffir dividend payers also improved on local support.

Oils were better after early hesitancy. Movements in industrials were few but generally in the favour of holders.—Reuter.

New York Stocks

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, Oct. 31.

Firm conditions prevailed on Wall Street today, with quotations generally finishing from fractions to about 2 points up. Trading was active, with the volume mounting on the scale-up. Steels, coppers, aviations, rails and other favourites led the upward movement, when a broad wave of new buying swept over the entire list.

Bullish factors included the rapid gains made by Mr. Wendell Willkie, continued good earnings and dividend reports, large government defence orders placed and no material change in the foreign political situation.

The turnover was very large, totalling 1,340,000 shares.—Reuter.

Dow-Jones Summary

By courtsey of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Stock prices reached new highs today since May 13 in the most active trading session recorded since June 12, under the leadership of steels, rails and oils, whilst other sections joined in the upward movement. The sudden strengthening was attributed to the accumulation of highly favourable industrial news, together with the further trends favouring Mr. Wendell Willkie. Many indexes indicate that industrial production is now at an all-time high. President Roosevelt has approved of the immediate construction of 13,315 defense housing units, costing $45,762,500. Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, revealed that British interests have ordered a large number of standardized new model freighters from American builders, whilst there are also reports that the British Shipping Commission is arranging to finance new United States shipyards. The Administration may arrange for the financing of a dozen new aircraft plants to handle the pending United States orders for 25,000 planes, British orders of 14,000 'planes, plus projected British orders for 12,000 heavy bombers and United States Army orders for 12,000 bombers. Willys-Overland is reported to be negotiating for a large United States Army contract for gun-carriages. Railway bonds and common stocks are likely to continue to respond to excellent reports. Carloadings are currently ruling at the 1940 peak, and are likely to increase considerably further as a result of the defense activities. Building supply shares are attracting attention on reports of steadily expanding construction.

Stocks:—The character and breadth of the current strength suggest a further extension, which is almost certain, barring unforeseen war shocks.

Cotton:—Advanced on Bombay and trade buying. However, there was no outside interest and little change is likely, pending the election. Cotton entering the loan up to October 28 totalled 1,126,670 bales.

Wheat:—There was the usual early professional selling, which met with sufficient mill buying. Speculative buying is awaiting the election. The cash position ruled firm.

Corn:—Hedging and increasing professional selling appear on upturns. The market looks lower.

Rubber:—The next meeting of the International Rubber Regulation Committee will be held on November 19, when a 5 per cent. increase is expected. Sentiment in the market is moderately bearish.

Hides:—The failure of the market to respond to the improvement in stocks is undermining confidence. "Spots" ruled quiet.

Sugar 4:—Continued to be stagnant.

Continued indications that the Republican Presidential nominee, Mr. Wendell Willkie, was gaining strength, together with excellent earnings reports, accounted for the broad rise in stock prices on Wall Street during the current period under review. At the beginning of the week, the realization that the invasion of Greece marked the beginning of a new phase of the war, induced some small selling, which, however, failed to attracted a following, as the underlying trend of the market remained firm. Despite the continued uneasiness over European developments, buyers

Bitter Attack on U.S. Policy Made by Japanese Journal

America Said Plunging Headlong Toward War; Armaments Said Piled Up in Manila

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

MR. Cordell Hull, U.S. Secretary of State, was attacked by the "Nichi Nichi" today for his speech made Sunday before the National Press Club in which Mr. Hull urged more aid for Britain and China and lashed out at Totalitarian Powers for spreading wars.

At the same time, the Shanghai correspondent of the "Nichi Nichi" reported that the United States was making preparations for war against Japan, with Manila as an advance base.

Commenting on Mr. Hull's speech, the "Nichi Nichi" assailed him because he allegedly did not consider the root of the causes and the "force of circumstances" which compelled Japan's actions on the Chinese continent.

The journal charged that American policy toward Japan and the Far East must be held partly responsible for Japan's actions in China.

Should Be Straightforward

The United States ostensibly champions "equal opportunity" and "open door" principles on account of her ambition toward China, it said.

"If Hull really champions world peace he should view the world crisis in a straight forward manner," the "Nichi Nichi" said.

Among her preparations, he alleged, American manufactured munitions have been rushed to Manila and Rangoon camouflaged as supplies for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Arms, gasoline and planes have been piled up in British concessions and international settlements in the Far East and American officers have been landed in Singapore and Hongkong, he charged.

The correspondent also alleged that the Fourth Marines in Shanghai were under war-training for the purpose of effecting a quick withdrawal from the city in the event that such a step was necessary.

U.S. Efforts "Betrayed"

The U.S. Asiatic Fleet, he continued, recently has engagd in special gunnery practice and the evacuation of Americans from the Far East betrays American efforts to strengthen embargoes against Japan after the completion of the evacuation.

Manila, the Shanghai "Nichi Nichi" correspondent further asserted, was speeding up the stocking of armaments, particularly aircraft which are able to fly from Manila to Tokyo and back with "comparative ease."

"Such facts," the correspondent alleged, "have exceeded the bounds of threats. The United States appears to be plunging into war against Japan."—United Press.

Duke of Windsor May Move on

Position in Bahamas Not Expected to Last Long; Duchess Restless

New York, Nov. 1.

Neither the Duke and Duchess of Windsor nor the Bahamians think that the former British king's job as governor of the Bahamas will last very long, says a United Press correspondent.

This is the conclusion reached after a month at Nassau during which I "covered" activities of the Windsors, had many conversations them and talked with innumerable residents and officials.

The last time I spoke to the Duchess she went so far as to say flatly that she did not consider Government House as "hers" but as an official residence. This fact, she said, underlay all her plans for its redecoration.

"I want to do this house so that the next governor can move right in without having it redecorated," she said. "It isn't as if it were my home—it is an official residence and I want to decorate it to harmonize with anyone's belongings."

Only Stopping Off

The inference that her husband's job as Governor of the Bahamas is only temporary fits in with the general belief in Nassau that the Duke is only stopping off in the small capital on his way to bigger things.

But what these bigger things are is a matter of controversy. Many Bahamians believe that even while governor of the islands, he will serve as an unofficial good will ambassador to America. The Duke himself denied this, though he stressed his feeling of friendship for the United States and expressed a wish to "be back soon." He declared that both he and the Duchess would make a trip "after the elections and before the New Year" through the United States, continuing on to Canada to visit his ranch at Calgary.

"America is, after all, the Duchess' own country," he said with a smile at his wife.

Bahamas Would Suffer

One official told me me there was a general feeling that if the Duke asked his brother, King George VI, to be withdrawn, the King would comply with his wishes. And that, the official said, would be a tragedy for the Bahamas, a final blow at their dwindling tourist trade which has already suffered as a result of the war.

When I asked him if he thought that the Windsors would make such a request, he refused to reply, but he added that at any rate, he didn't think they would be there long.

"It is just a temporary question of giving His Royal Highness safety," he said. "When the war blows over, he may be reinstated in England or retire to private life. Unless of course, the impossible happens and Hitler wins. In that case the Duke would be in a very valuable position indeed."

Much-Needed Rest

The official explained this latter statement by pointing out that even if the British Isles themselves were conquered, the Empire's life in the Western Hemisphere would continue.

In his case, he said, the long-talked-of federated West Indies might come into being—and the Duke would certainly be in line for its presidency.

So far Nassau has provided the Windsors with little more than the rest they needed after their flight before the advancing German forces. The Duchess has busied herself with the redecoration of Government House; the Duke as divided his time between conferences with local officials and the golf course where he has braved the heat daily to play with his aides-de-camp.

And the fact that the Duchess would like to get away at least for a while—from Nassau was obvious. One of the last things she said to me was: "How I envy you going back to New York!"—United Press.

Emigrants' Library Needs More Books

A new appeal for books has been made by the Central Emigrants Library.

The Central Emigrants' Library was founded by donations of books and periodicals on the part of the Shanghai public.

The library has now been in existence for about one year and greatly contributes to the satisfaction of cultural requirements of the refugees free of charge.

The number of subscribers has increased to an extent that the management gets themselves again before the necessity to appeal to the generosity of the public for further donations of old books and back numbers of periodicals. The management would be glad to send for them.

In case of removals, liquidation of households, etc. there is many a periodical or book thrown away. The public are asked to think of those in need of the reading matter and kindly ring up 60183, Alcock Road Camp, or drop a card to the Central Emigrants' Library, 60 Alcock Road, Emigrant's Camp.

Death Sentence for Chinese Communists

Taiyuan, Nov. 1.

U.S. Said Walking Into Danger

"Bluff Policy" Assailed by "Nichi Nichi Shimbun" In Shanghai Despatch

Tokyo, Nov. 1.

The United States is walking into a "danger zone" in the Far East as the result of Washington's "bluff policy," a special despatch from Shanghai to the popular "Nichi Nichi Shimbun" said today.

The Shanghai despatch attracted widespread attention as it boldly asserted that American political, diplomatic, military and economic measures adopted vis-a-vis the Far East "had passed a stage of intimidation and were rushing straight towards war."

As an indication of America's warlike policy, the special article first cited the evacuation of American residents from the Far East, which can be interpreted as prelude to the imposition of a complete trade embargo against Japan.

Evacuation preparations were being made by the Fourth U.S. Marine Corps which was simultaneously undergoing intensive training, while "the transport Gold Star was standing by in Shanghai, it was pointed out.

"Warlike Policy"

The despatch then said that the recent $25,000,000 American loan to Chungking was believed to be an attempt to draw Soviet Russia into the Anglo-American camp by permitting Chungking to pay off Soviet Russia for the recent purchase of Soviet war materials. This in turn will enable the Soviet Union to purchase machine tools from America.

As another indication of America's warlike policy in the Far East, the despatch cited the creation of an advance base for attack on Japan at Manila where large quantities of armaments to Chungking were being held up. It was believed that the United States "camouflaged" the shipment of arms to the Philippines for strengthening defences as military supplies destined to Chungking, according to the despatch.

From 150 to 170 Boeing bombers are now stationed in the Philippines, and these craft are able to carry out raids on Tokyo flying from Manila, while pursuit plane squadrons from the Selfridge and Hamilton air fields are being sent to the Philippines, the "Nichi Nichi" asserted.

The United States, the message further stated, joined Britain in sabotaging the Batavia talks between the Japanese and Netherland East Indian authorities, while the American Ambassador to China, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, was attempting to conclude a Sino-American alliance.

The "Nichi Nichi" despatch pointed out in conclusion that two-thirds of the U.S. Fleet were now at positions for an attack on Japan.

Despatch Discredited

Mr. Yakichiro Suma, the Foreign Office Spokesman, during the regular press conference this morning, bluntly discredited a despatch from Shanghai in the popular "Nichi Nichi Shimbun," which claimed that the United States was strengthening Manila as an advance base for war against Japan.

Questioned by an American correspondent, Mr. Suma asked "Do you believe it?" When the correspondent replied in the negative, the Gaimusho spokesman said, "Neither do I."

The Spokesman then remarked that the Japanese Government should remain calm at this juncture without paying undue attention to sensational reports.—Domei.

Lin Yu-tang Says Chinese Exhausting Japan

40,000 Casualties a Month Said Inflicted

New York, Nov. 1.

Chinese troops are inflicting 40,000 casualties monthly on Japanese forces in the Sino-Japanese war, Dr. Lin Yu-tang, noted author, said here yesterday.

The Chinese successfully are fighting Japan, said Dr. Lin Yu-tang in an address before the China Society.

Japan's military forces are becoming so depleted she is using older reservists on the fighting lines, the noted author said. He predicted that even limited aid to China by the United States will enable China to "finish off" Japan.—United Press.

Japan-N.E.I. Parleys Continue

Hanoi, Nov. 1.

Mr. Shinichi Shibuzawa, secretary-general of the Japanese delegation to French Indo-China, conferred with the representative of the French Indo-China Government Authorities yesterday. Further negotiations between Mr. Shibuzawa and French Indo-China will continue today.—Domei.

HARBOUR NOTIFICATION
No. 44 of 1940

Shanghai Harbour: Lower Section: New Mooring Buoys laid in.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a tier of six new mooring buoys has been laid by the Japanese Military Authorities below buoy No. 44.

The new buoys are laid approximately on the line drawn from buoy No. 44 towards the Tungkow buoy (Buoy No. 6 Astrea Channel). The lowest of these new buoys is about 2,427 feet distant from buoy No. 44.

These buoys when unoccupied will be lighted during the hours of darkness in the same manner as all the other mooring buoys.

The colour of light on buoy No. 44 will henceforth be white and the red light will be exhibited on the lowest buoy of the new tier.

P. I. TIRBAK,
Harbour Master.

"Deficiency of information in Japanese English-language newspapers is completed very successfully by an English newspaper in Kobe The Japan Chronicle . . on its pages can often be found criticisms of the political and economic actions of the Japanese Government and various other information which gives the opportunity to observe and to analyse the Japanese economic situation. In addition to the usual material obtainable from all the Japanese English-language newspapers, The Japan Chronicle gives a very detailed and comprehensive review of the foreign trade of Japan. It regularly prints statistics pertaining to Japanese exports and the state of the home market."—Extracts from U.S.S.R. Chamber of Commerce Journal.
